Fourth of July hijinks in Carmel

PHIL SAMMET of Redwood City found the "perfect" way to spend his Independence Day holiday — buried in the sand on Carmel Beach. Sammet and an estimated 2,999 others flocked to Carmel Beach July 4 for a day of picnics, sunbathing and fireworks. Carmel Police Sgt. Jerry Pullen attributed the smaller crowd to city restrictions on large bonfires, exploding fireworks and parking near the beach. Although it was quiet for most of the day, a late-night incident marred the otherwise peaceful day at the beach. Pullen reported that a crowd of about 300 to 350 people were on the beach when police called the fire department to extinguish an illegal bonfire. Pullen said most of the people dispersed quietly when asked, but a group of about 100 to 125 refused to leave. The crowd began to hurl firecrackers and bottles at police and firefighters. Pullen said 12 officers, including assistance from Monterey County sheriff deputies, were needed to break up the crowd. Eleven people were taken into custody, but charges were filed against only one, who was accused of battery on a police officer, Pullen said. Reports that firefighters indiscriminately hosed water on the crowd were "totally incorrect," Pullen said. He said the pressure from the hoses caused firefighters to spray parts of the crowd while they attempted to move the hose in the direction of the fire. "There's no doubt that some people got wet, but it was not intentional," he said. (Michael R. Gardner photo). For more photo coverage, see page 13.

Thanks for coverage

Dear Editor:

Thank you very much for your editorials and articles in the Pine Cone/Outlook about the TDC plan for Big Sur.

Your writings have certainly made a difference to those of us who do not want the TDC plan adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, and we appreciate it very much.

As a resident of the south coast, I know that I have only one voice, only one vote. But with the impact of your voice and pen, much weight has been shifted toward defeating the TDC plan.

Of course, time will yet tell us how the plan will be massaged in the next meeting of the planning commissioners; however, it looks like another kind of plan will be needed to protect the viewshed of the Big Sur coast.

Lease Woods School

Dear Editor:

While we understand the interest in selling off the Woods School property, the impact of expanding enrollment at River School and in other kindergartens and in a variety of nursery schools, strongly dictates the need for a school to handle expansion. In fact, one school may not be sufficient three to five years from now.

At Bay School, for example, 65 children are currently enrolled (their largest enrollment ever), with a waiting list of 30 additional children. Other nursery schools are experiencing similar situations.

As we mentioned at the meeting, there are already 83 kindergarten registrants at River School, requiring three or four classes in a school now running out of space. A further check of that situation revealed that many of these children have numerous younger siblings and/or pregnant mothers.

With such evidence, the "inloading" of Woods School seems hard to justify. Rather than being "surplus," it's rapidly become a necessity.

The district needs money, obviously. The immediate offer of close to $100,000 for a lease of Woods School during the upcoming school year is simply too good to pass up, especially since any move to dispose of the Wood School property will inevitably be protracted.

Whatever legal procedures may be necessary, a one-year lease of the Woods School property should be pursued immediately. We'll make money and still have a school we truly need. That would be vastly preferable to the hue and cry that would be associated with any request for school construction or expansion funds.

Questions parking project

Dear Editor:

Every resident is aware of the parking problem in Carmel — a problem that starts between 10 and 11 A.M. each day due to employee/employer parking, double parked trucks, tourists/visitors and perhaps an occasional resident.

What appears to be a small solution that is almost to the written agreement stage is a three-tiered parking facility under the proposed library annex in conjunction with the Pine Inn. The hotel needs more parking spaces for their guests and provides none for their employees.

Of the 94 spaces available in the new garage the city will gain 26 or 27 spaces. This number includes the eight spaces now available for public parking in the library parking lot. The remaining spaces will be for the Pine Inn. Neither the Pine Inn or the city has provided for staff parking.

When the cost of the property is pro-rated, plus the $120,000 Alan Williams says it will cost the city (that's probably yesterday's cost) it seems the price per space is somewhat excessive. If construction starts later this year or next, the cost could be higher.

Then there is the cost of maintaining these new 18 or 19 spaces. (26 or 27 minus eight). It has not been determined if there will be a parking charge. Since these spaces are underground the need for supervision against mugging, and robbery will be necessary. This would add another employee to our already 108.9 city work force. If it is a "for pay" garage a collector will be needed.

Then one has to consider that the library staff and budget has been cut; however, it is probable the children's library will be moved to the new annex. This could mean the rehiring of the children's librarian.

Taking into account the cost of the land (even though it is paid for) the annex, the limited number of spaces gained, additional employees, the cut in library funds and all the services and supplies, is this really the prudent way to go at this time?

There is another situation which should be considered. Carmel will be leasing some of its property to the Pine Inn. Depending on the amount and the length of time the lease would run, it could present a sticky problem in years to come. This is something residents might wish public discussion on before the city makes any commitment on their property.

It should be noted the library annex is not dependent on the Pine Inn. Alan Williams, speaking for the Pine Inn stated: "The Pine Inn will go ahead with their portion of the parking facility whether the city does or not." He also implied the air space above their proposed facility will be for sale, should the city be interested.

The residents of Carmel should vigorously question and investigate what is being considered at Lincoln and Sixth. Will we be getting our money's worth, will it be in keeping with Carmel or change the character of the area and/or the village? Then let the council know your feelings and how you think they should proceed before negotiations continue and it becomes a fait accompli which some council members hope will be by the end of July.

It's 'incredible'

Dear Editor:

The issue over the Hatton Canyon route has been going on for 34 years! This is incredible.

In 1948, with the support of the Carmel City Council and Planning Commission, the California Highway Commission adopted a resolution favoring the Hatton Canyon Route.

In the ensuing years every attempt to solve this now intolerable problem of traffic between Ocean Avenue and Carmel Valley Road has been defeated. Every undertaking to get something done, by all the political bodies and organized civic groups in Monterey County, has been thwarted.

As recently as four years ago, the state legislature appropriated several millions of dollars for the sole purpose of construction of the Hatton Canyon route. Somehow, these funds were diverted and mysteriously disappeared.

Every political organization in the county is aware that for years, the county has not received its fair share of state highway funds. It should be obvious that some unknown powerful influence is at work. It is high time that the citizenry become aroused enough to ferret out who is blocking the will of the public's majority.

'No growth' initiative

Dear Editor:

On June 24, 1982, the Carmel Pine Cone published a full page "Monterey County Initiative." I am deeply opposed to any such attempt from any group representing "no growth" or measures to stop or reduce growth. This is such an initiative! The authors of this initiative, like groups I have seen throughout California and the United States, present these kinds of initiatives that destroy the very concept that made our country great.

They also must look at their children and grandchildren and someday explain why they took the "American dream" away from them. We are the only nation in the world that has the ability to "own our own home." Now governments (city, county, state, federal), no-growthers, environmentalists, and do-gooders are working overtime to destroy the dream. This "Monterey County Initiative" does just that!

Instead of working through the voting process to elect the right planning commissioner, supervisor, city councilman, state elected offical, mayor, governor, senator, congressman, or president, and instead of supporting political leaders that are not for special interest groups, they screw up the system with their own special interests.

We need housing for the poor, senior citizens, low and moderate income persons, the newly married, single adults, middle-aged retirees, widows and all sorts of others. With more well planned growth we could have a great country!

Petaluma tried to stop growth and even took it to the Supreme Court of the U.S.A. Seven years later, the city is now on the verge of bankruptcy and is begging growth to come in to their area. It is not possible to stop or limit growth and still provide services and run the government.

The authors of "Monterey County initiative," say: "Well, I've got a nice cushy home, and I don't want anyone else moving into the Monterey area, so let's stop growth."

I say you folks should move to South Dakota or Alaska where there are hardly any people! You won't have to worry about the expertise necessary to plan the future of cities and county growth by insuring that roads are built, sewer plants are designed for expansion and water systems have built-in designs for increased capacity.

Then we who want to proceed ahead in life won't have to explain to our children why there are no places to live.

Good education prevails

Dear Editor:

The Association of Carmel Teachers feels obligated to respond to comments made by board members of a private school wishing to rent Woods School in Carmel. Their comments implied that children's needs are not being met in the public schools of Carmel.

Just to set the record straight! Primary students (K-3) are taught reading one hour each day in small groups of from 12 to 15 students. In our elementary classrooms, there is a strong emphasis on the basic skills. Our intellectually gifted and talented students participate in a pull-out program on a biweekly basis, in addition to the leadership and other classroom challenges designed by their teachers, with resource materials available for their use.

At the middle school and high school, special classes are designated for the gifted and highly motivated learner. At each school site, children with learning problems are evaluated by a school appraisal team consisting of the school psychologist, principal, resource specialist, Title I teachers, speech therapist, classroom teacher, and parents, who make individual educational programs for students in their areas of need. Title I teachers and Learning Resource Specialists work with individuals or small groups on a daily basis.

Our school board, administration, and teaching staff have made great efforts to maintain a strong program in the fine arts. Vocal music has been expanded to include third graders' participation with a district music resource specialist. Special planning and funds made available by Friends of Carmel Schools will make it possible to strengthen the music programs at the Middle School and the High School next year. Anyone who saw the revolving art exhibits in the Central Office foyer, and the extensive Fine Arts Festival at Del Monte Center during Public School Week, must know what challenging and creative arts programs are continuing in the classrooms of C.U.S.D.

Carmel is not a wasteland! Everyone is struggling, and it is more difficult, but not impossible, to maintain the same quality educational programs our schools have always provided. Our test scores verify the high expectations of our teachers and the achievements of our young people.

Often repeated fallacies about the public schools frequently lead people to believe them. Good education is the rule in Carmel — not the exception.

Why sell right-of-way?

Dear Editor:

About 10 years ago, some residents of Carmel Knolls, South Carmel Hills, and Hatton Fields who were not happy with the design for a "major highspeed freeway" as initially proposed for Hatton Canyon, submitted a study to the State Division of Highways. I quote from the study: "The logical answer therefore is a road through Hatton Canyon in keeping with the beauty of the place."

And in the conclusion: "Also that an auxiliary road — both practical and in keeping with the beauty of the area in its concept — be the replacement (my works, i.e. replacement for the original design) for Hatton Canyon's needed and future thoroughfare."

After many special studies and construction of numerous scale models, all reviewed by citizens' committees, a design was accepted that was as compatible as possible with the canyon slopes and adjacent developments — a four lane facility which qualifies as a low standard, scenic highway, and is a freeway only in the respect that access would be limited.

After fighting for and getting what they wanted, some of the same people who submitted the study and agreed for the need of a Hatton Canyon route, are anxious now to have the canyon right-of-way put up for sale. I wonder why?

Sorting out rumors

Dear Editor:

We at Dieckmann's have heard and read all the negative publicity we care to concerning a proposed kitchen addition for the saloon below our establishment.

It's true we were approached by the owners of Sade's with a purchase offer. However, the amount was half of what we paid for our business. We rejected that offer and have heard nothing since.

Time and time again, we have heard rumors that our business — which is mainly by mail order — was failing and that the saloon would soon be installing a kitchen in our store space. Not true; never has been.

Our lease was on the open market for all to consider. Someone did, made us a reasonable offer, and we accepted.

We do not want the residents and business community of Carmel to think for one minute that we don't care about its history and charm. We at Dieckmann's have done our best to uphold the courtesy and respectability of our establishment — a tradition we know will be maintained by the new owners.

Carmel general plan questionnaire mailed

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL RESIDENTS will be asked their opinion on everything from art galleries to annexation in a questionnaire to be mailed this week to the 3,900 registered voters of the city.

The survey is an attempt to gauge public opinion on a variety of issues to be addressed in the revision of the 1973 general plan.

"I think it's crucial that citizens return the questionnaire. The citizens of Carmel need to be heard," Mayor Charlotte Townsend said. "This is an absolutely marvelous way for their voice to be heard."

Mrs. Townsend said it is important for the council to know how residents feel about the future of Carmel in terms of development before the revised general plan is adopted.

"In the past, we have reacted to situations instead of planning for the future," she said. "The questionnaire will let us know where the public stands before the problems come up."

"The city council and the planning commission, assisted by the General Plan Advisory Committee, are revising the general plan for the city. The questions on the questionnaire will be used to guide growth," said City Administrator Doug Peterson.

"We want people to take it seriously," Peterson said. "This is an opportunity for them to speak out and say what they want."

Peterson said he hopes at least one out of every two registered voters respond to the survey. "I would hope that we push 50 percent. I would hope that we do better than that."

Peterson said the city will survey only registered voters because "these are the people who make the political decisions. They are the ones who go out and vote."

The survey, which has been under preparation for six months, is expected to be in the mail this week with stamped, return envelopes, Peterson said.

Results of the survey will be tabulated after the deadline for return, which is Aug. 1. Peterson added that he has not yet decided how to tabulate the results.

One method of computer tabulation would correlate whether a respondent feels there is a parking problem in Carmel, but does not use public transportation, for example.

Peterson said it would be less expensive for the city to hire part-time workers to hand count the responses, but that method would not provide comparisons between answers.

Peterson said the cost of the survey will depend on which method of tabulation the council approves.

•

THE QUESTIONS, which are prepared in a multiple choice format, are purposely not specific to allow citizens flexibility of response, Peterson said.

A survey of Carmel citizens was first proposed in December of 1981, just before the General Plan Advisory Committee was scheduled to begin its in-depth review of the 1973 general plan.

Advisory committee members, planning commissioners and council members developed a series of proposed questions over a period of about two months. The council approved the final survey questions.

After the responses are tabulated, the advisory committee will use the information during its second series of hearings on the general plan elements. The committee has already reviewed several elements and will open discussions on land use July 8.

Here are the questions that appear on the questionnaire and some background on the issues:

• "Should the city seek ways to restrict the number of tourist oriented businesses within the city?"

Concerned about a trend toward more tourist-oriented businesses in the commercial district, the city council enacted a moratorium Aug. 3, 1981 to prohibit new or expanded gift shops, art stores, art galleries, food service establishments and motels. The moratorium is not expected to be lifted until work on the revised general plan is completed sometime in early 1983.

There is a provision in the moratorium that allows development or expansion of the businesses if the use is "reasonably expected" to be allowed in the revised general plan.

The second question on the survey is directly related to the first question. It asks whether the city should "allow no more" or "seek reduction in number" of the following businesses: restaurants, art galleries, real estate offices and gift shops.

During the General Plan Advisory Committee meetings on the questionnaire, several members asked whether some businesses can be called "tourist oriented." They said restaurants certainly serve local residents and so do the other businesses in varying degrees.

• "Do you feel the city should subsidize residentially-oriented businesses?"

Peterson said this question is "purposely vague" because there are a variety of ways that businesses can be subsidized. Some respondents may not want the city to help the businesses financially, but may agree that special zoning or relaxed parking restrictions will encourage merchants who want to cater to residents, he said.

• "Should the city explore means of providing housing for low income residents? Should the city allow second kitchens in single family dwellings?"

•

THESE TWO questions are related because general plan consultant Earth Metrics has recommended that the city legalize second kitchens to increase available rental units.

Second kitchens are identified by the city as rental units that have a sink and hot plate. They are frequently converted garages or workshops detached from the main house.

• "Do you have trouble parking downtown?"

The chronic parking problem has never been solved by the city despite efforts through the years to encourage more spaces and discourage commuter parking. In response to complaints from residents that they could not shop downtown because of the lack of parking spaces, the city has enacted a program that allows residents with a special permit to park in one hour zones for two hours. The program has been in effect since Feb. 4, 1980.

• "Who should finance parking in the business district: business, city, city and business, none of the above?"

With limited available downtown property and high commercial real estate values, development of more parking areas for employees, residents and tourists would be very costly. But the question of who pays for the land has not been answered. Businesses benefit from the shoppers, but the city also receives sales tax and motel tax revenues.

• "Is automobile parking in your neighborhood a problem to you and your guests? Do you approve of a preferential parking program for residents within the residential areas?"

Because of a lack of all-day parking spaces in the commercial zone, overflow traffic has parked in adjacent residential areas. During the General Plan Advisory Committe meetings on parking, several residents complained neither they nor their guests could park near the house because all parking spaces were occupied.

There are several different kinds of preferential parking programs for residents which have been discussed by the advisory committee. One would limit parking to two hours in the adjacent residential zones except for cars that have a special all-day permit issued to residents only. Residents could also obtain all-day parking permits for visitors. A second program would restrict parking in the adjacent residential zones to Carmel residents.

• "Do you favor the construction of a parking facility at the north end of Sunset Community and Cultural Center?"

The unpaved Sunset Ccenter lot on the southeast corner of San Carlos Street and Eighth Avenue provides all-day parking. There have been "innumerable proposals" for a facility on the site, Peterson said. Some of the proposals have envisioned a two-story facility that would span the entire lot. Another plan is for two stories of vehicle parking and a third, top floor for a park area, with landscaping and picnic area.

• "Do you think the city should acquire more property for public use such as: beach property, housing for elderly, open space, parking and parks?"

The city council owns a 40-by-100 foot parcel of property on Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues to be developed into Piccadilly Park. The city has also acquired property on Lincoln Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues for a library annex and parking facility. The parking facility would be operated jointly with the Pine Inn.

• "Do you feel the city now owns land that should be sold?"

Peterson said citizens have suggested that the city sell some of its properties. Some of the more often mentioned properties include portions of Mission Trails park adjacent to Martin Way; the Piccadilly Park property; two lots on the west side of Dolores Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues; and portions of the Sunset Center block on San Carlos Street.

PARKING HAS long been a problem in Carmel. Because of a lack of spaces, many times drivers park illegally. An example is this car pictured above in a truck loading zone. A city-sponsored survey will ask residents who they feel should pay for aditional parking spaces. Restrictions on the number of tourist-oriented businesses (above, left) is another concern reflected in the questionaire.

• "Do you favor the annexation of areas adjacent to Carmel-by-the-Sea? Should the city pursue legislation which would allow the citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea to vote on all annexation issues?"

These questions are particularly timely as a decision nears on the annexation of the 170-acre Carmel Woods area. The fiscal impact on the city if Carmel Woods is annexed is not known, said Peterson. The question does not cover just Carmel Woods, but applies to areas that are adjacent to the city limits such as Carmel Point and Mission Fields.

•

UNDER CURRENT annexation laws, voters within an incorporated city do not vote on annexation. The council would have to appeal to the state legislature for a change in the regulations for city residents to have a vote in future annexation proposals.

• "Do you favor additional public transportation within Carmel?"

The city council has discussed whether to offer some kind of city bus service for residents. The bus service would transport residents to the downtown area, Sunset

Fence height issue once again faces city council

THE CARMEL City Council will once again wade into the quagmire of fence heights when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 13 at Carmel City Hall.

Councilman Frank Lloyd thinks the four-foot residential fence height limitation imposed by the council in August of 1980 makes the city look foolish and believes it should be rescinded.

Lloyd has asked to have the issued placed on the council agenda for discussion, since there are three new members of that body who were not in office last August.

Over the objections of the Carmel Planning Commission, the city council passed by 3-2 an ordinance to reduce the fence height limit from six feet to four feet; the measure permits six foot fences only after design approval by the planning commission. It applies to fences which are parallel to the public street within any required setback area.

Robert Stephenson, now a member of the city council, was chairman of the planning commission when the ordinance was passed, and was strongly opposed to the four-foot fence height limitation.

"I think that ordinance was idiotic," said Councilman Lloyd, who voted for its passage last year. "It just clutters up the city code. There was a great deal of criticism at the time it was passed and I was just lukewarm on it."

Council members Frank Lloyd voted for passage of the measure with councilwoman Helen Arnold and former Councilman Mike Brown; former Mayor Barney Laiolo and former Councilman Howard Brunn opposed.

"I think this just makes Carmel look like we're always picayune about stuff," Lloyd said. "Personally, I would support wiping the ordinance off the books."

The planning commission held a public hearing in July of 1981 in which all speakers expressed their opposition to the lowered fence height limits.

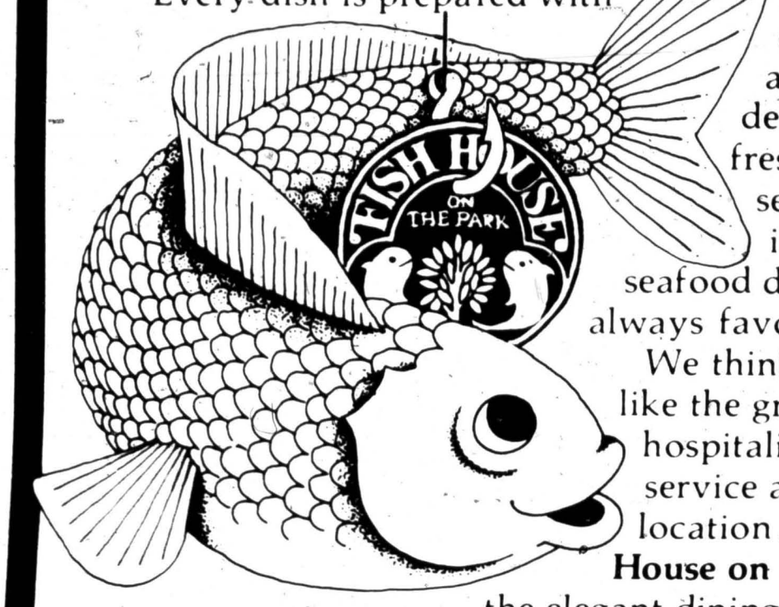

In other business, the council will once again consider a proposal to prohibit the consideration of any new council agenda items after 10:30 p.m. without a majority vote. The measure was proposed by Mayor Charlotte Townsend last month as a way to limit the length of council meetings and to promote more public participation. It was continued to the July 13 meeting.

The council is also scheduled to hold a public hearing on an amendment to the city ordinance which prohibits distribution of handbills. On the recommendation of City Atty. George Brehmer, the council has modified the ordinance to permit distribution of handbills and other literature, including newspapers, except where a sign is posted indicating that the resident does not want the literature.

The planning commission has recommended that the size of those signs be limited to no more than two inches by 12 inches, and the council is to consider incorporation of that size limit into the ordinance when it meets July 13

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors made a wise decision Tuesday to drop a proposal — which had been staunchly supported by Fifth District Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley — for salary increases for supervisors at a time when the $122 million county budget is in serious trouble and some 190 county employees may lose their jobs.

Before the sudden change of heart over salary increases, Supervisor Peters and Fourth District Supervisor Michal Moore of Del Rey Oaks staked their claim to higher wages on the assertion that the job of supervisor is full-time and that the level of responsibility and complexity of the tasks which face a supervisor justify the increase.

The proposal which had been supported by Peters would have scaled supervisors' salaries to 60 percent of the compensation received by municipal court judges; that would have resulted in an approximate increase to $31,000 per year from the current $21,000 per year paid county supervisors.

On the face of it, Supervisor Peters' argument seems to make sense. There are many complexities involved with government at all levels these days, particularly since passage of Prop. 13. Undoubtedly, an individual could put in 80 or more hours a week at the job of supervisor — or for that matter school trustee or city council member — if they so chose.

The County Supervisors Association of California says the job of supervisor is considered to be full-time in only about five of the 58 counties in California. In many urban counties, such as Alameda County, supervisors supplement their salary with other employment, according to CSAC.

In San Francisco, for instance, supervisors are paid less than $10,000 per year as part-time county employees. Although salaries of supervisors in Monterey County have been increased in recent years to full-time compensation, there is nothing to prohibit supervisors from taking outside employment.

In addition to their $21,000 annual salary, Monterey County supervisors also have the services of full-time aides in the discharge of their duties and — in the case of Supervisors Peters and Moore — enjoy rent-free office space in the county courthouse.

Other fringe benefits to which supervisors are entitled include about $720 per year for premiums to cover health, dental and optical insurance policies; an additional $100 monthly allowance which the supervisor can use for additional insurance coverage, pension, life insurance benefits; plus a flat monthly gasoline mileage allowance of $150 or reimbursement at the rate of 26 cents per mile; plus a quarterly expense allowance of $125.

Supervisors and their aides are reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses whenever they travel on county business, and supervisors and their aides may use county motor pool vehicles when they are available.

In fact, the present $21,000 salary for a county supervisor is more than the estimated median household income for Monterey County, according to the county planning department. The 1976 mid-decade census set the median household income in the county at $11,855; adjusted upward at a rate of 10 percent annually, the current figure is about $19,200 — less than what our supervisors are now paid.

It would appear that, even if one accepts Supervisor Peters' premise that supervisorial duties demand full-time attention, the salary for supervisors is more than adequate. Further, it is impossible to accept the argument that supervisors deserve or need higher wages when other county employees face the loss of their jobs, and citizens face the loss or curtailment of many important services.

Unlike career positions in the county bureaucracy, the job of supervisor is an elected position which carries with it a higher degree of responsibility to serve the public over self, and a greater degree of public trust. Sometimes the position may demand some sacrifices.

It's reassuring to know that supervisors — whether as a result of public pressure or their own consciences — can take a leadership role in holding the budgetary line and living within the county's means. If some supervisors still feel they are inadequately compensated, perhaps they should consider another job where the wages are more in line with their own expectations.

• "How often do you use public transportation services: five or more times a week, one to four times a week, a few times a month, do not use?"

To plan transportation needs and for use as background information for future solutions to the parking problem, the council wants to know how many city residents use public transportation. If it is not used often, the council wants to explore why it isn't and how the city can encourage residents to rely on public transportation.

• "Do you approve or disapprove of the following existing uses within the residential district: second kitchens, guest houses, rooming houses, clubs and institutions and residential motels?"

These uses exist in the residential zones of the city. If residents perceive one or more of these uses as a problem, the council would use the information to determine whether the uses should be restricted.

• "In order to decrease traffic congestion on Highway 1, which of the following should be done: widen existing Highway 1; construct a road along Hatton Canyon; leave it as it is; no opinions?"

Although Highway 1 is outside the city limits, the council decided to include this question because the traffic congestion directly affects Carmel citizens.

There has been a new swell of controversy over development of the Hatton Canyon freeway since the state announced a decision to rescind the $17 million project and sell the right-of-way because funds to build the road will not be available for 15 to 20 years.

The California Transportation Commission is expected to hold a public hearing on the proposed right-of-way abandonment sometime in the fall.

• "If noise is a problem in your neighborhood, please identify the source."

If certain businesses generate a lot of noise, the council may want to explore ways to reduce the impact or to discontinue the zoning that allows the use.

• "Should there be more control of development in the commercial district?"

The council wants to know if residents favor stricter ordinances to govern uses, building size and location.

Carmel Valley Ranch wants permit for erosion control

CARMEL VALLEY Ranch will ask the Monterey County Planning Commission July 14 for permission to install erosion control devices in the Carmel River.

The commission is scheduled to make an environmental review of the proposed project at 9 a.m. in supervisors' chambers in the Monterey County Courthouse in Salinas.

Under terms of the Carmel River floodplain ordinance enacted several months ago by the board of supervisors, the planning commission acts as the permit authority for erosion control projects in the river.

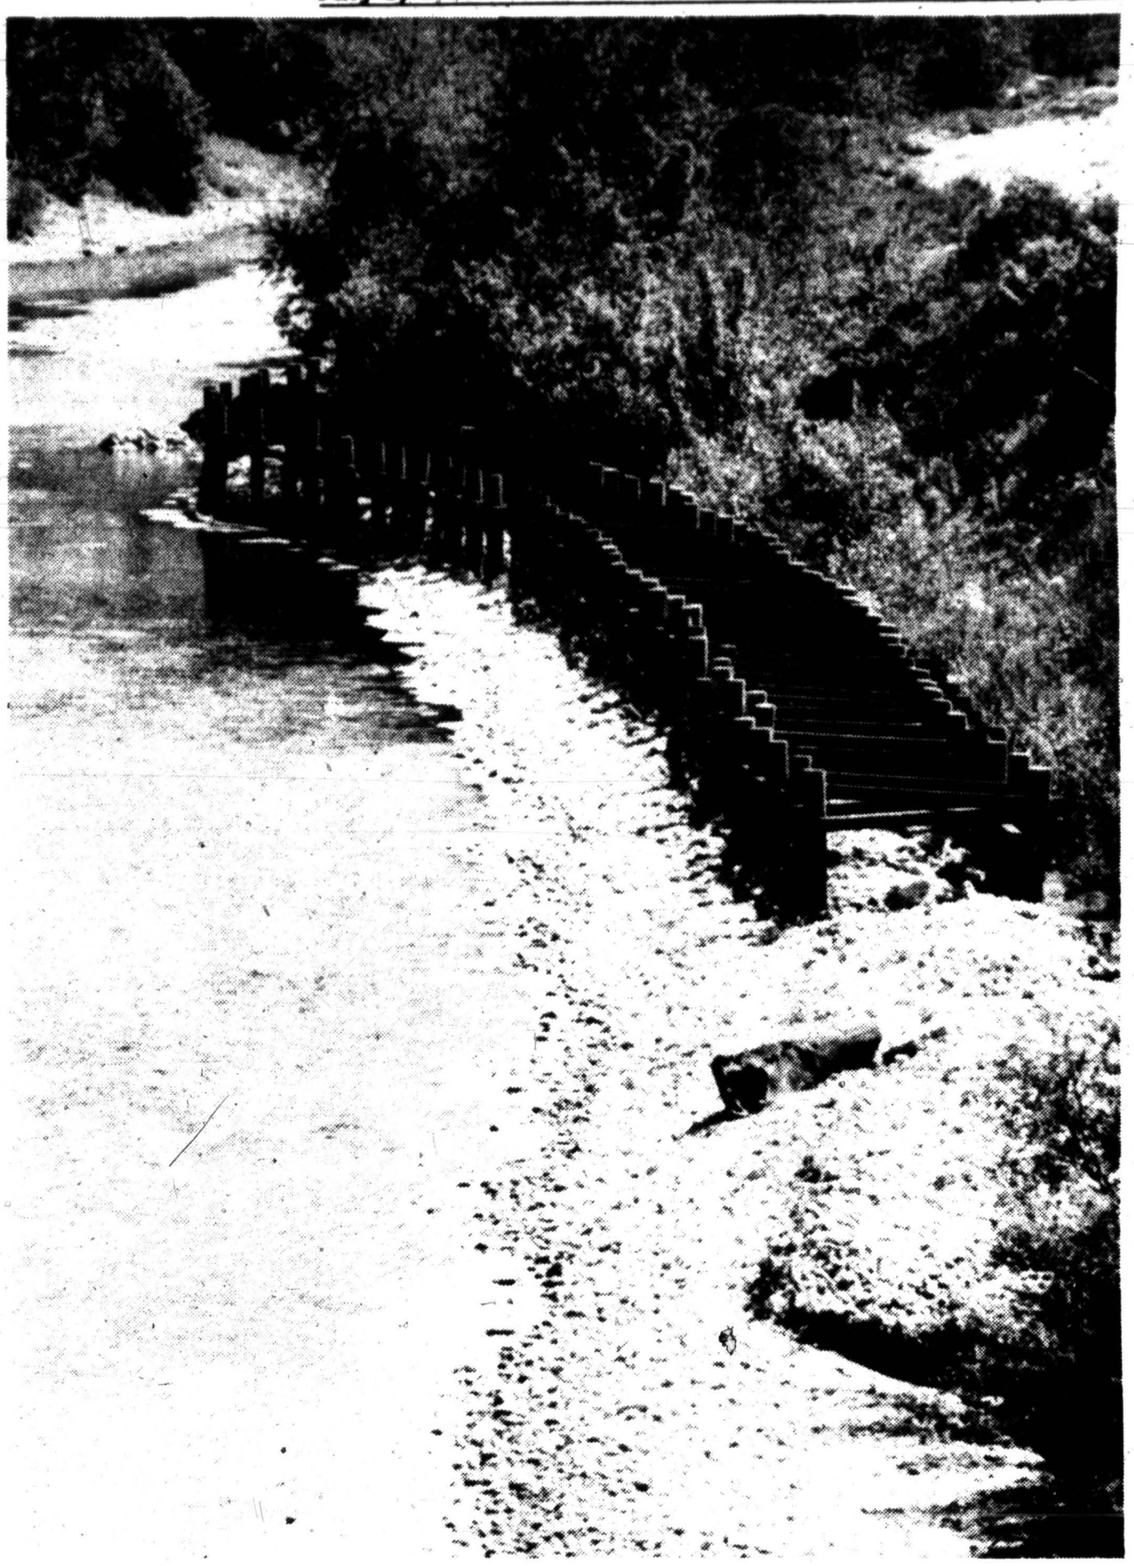

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said Carmel Valley Ranch wants permission to extend erosion barricades already installed east of the Robinson Canyon Bridge approximately another quarter mile eastward.

Planning staff has recommended a finding of no significant adverse environmental effects from the project, Slimmon said. After environmental review, the project is to be set for public hearing Aug. 11.

In other business, the planning commission will hold a public hearing on a proposed change of zoning district to permit the conversion of 15 apartments into condominium units in Carmel Valley.

The commission will consider Anne Nyman's request for a zoning change to permit her to convert her apartment units located on Village Drive in the Carmel Valley Village area to condominiums. The hearing is scheduled for 10:20 a.m. in supervisors' chambers.

The planning commission meeting is open to the public.

EROSION CONTROL devices at Carmel Valley Ranch, such as these barricades installed east of Robinson Canyon Bridge, would be extended another quarter mile if approval is granted by the Monterey County Planning Commission.

Carmel assessed valuation increases 13.9 percent in latest county figures

Monterey County Assessor Donald Stewart has increased the 1982 assessed valuation of property in Carmel by 13.9 percent over its 1981 level.

Stewart said total value of all real estate in Carmel for 1982 is $330,609,144 — an increase of $40,376,877 over the 1981 assessed valuation of $290,232,267.

Locally assessed property in Monterey County has a taxable value this year of $8,018,525,233, which is an increase of 9.9 percent over the 1981 valuation of $7,293,190,054, Stewart said.

Sanford Colburn, assistant assessor, said the new assessed valuations were arrived at by application of a flat 2 percent annual increase for properties which have not been sold since 1975 — the base year established by Prop. 13.

The remainder of the increase is accounted for by reassessment at full market value of new construction and properties which have been sold since passage of Prop. 13, Colburn said.

"If you had a home assessed at $25,000 in 1975, we've added 2 percent per year and placed it on market value as of 1981," Colburn said. "The prior assessed value was 25 percent of market value, so the assessed value of the property would now become $112,000."

The new assessed valuations will be reflected in property tax bills which will be mailed Oct. 15, Colburn said.

HOW CARMELITES SAW IN DARK

While Carmel still has few street lights outside the business district, there were none at all in the early days. Residents out at night used to find their way with a peculiarly local lantern made of a punctured soup can with a candle fastened inside.

Carmel Barracudas

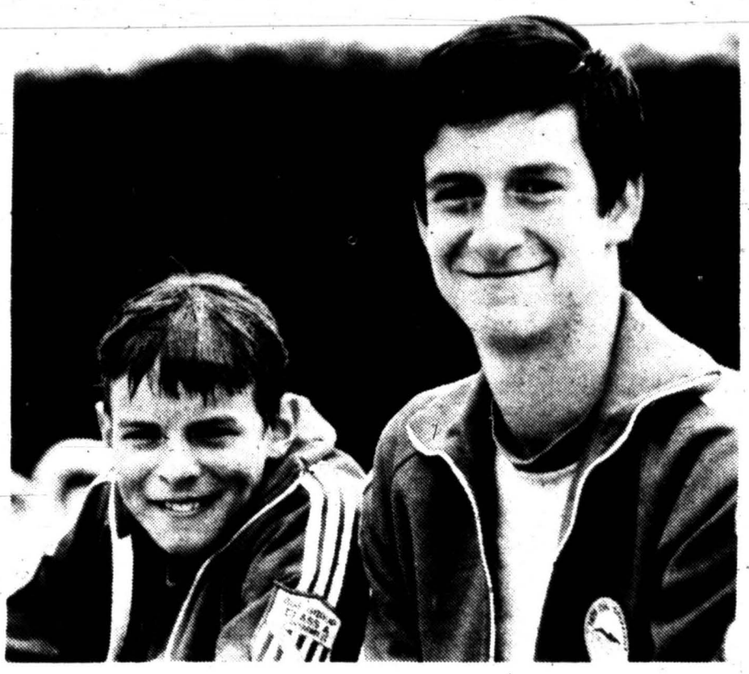

By DEE DEE HICKS

CARMEL BARRACUDA swimmers Jeff Lewis and Ali Voskay are getting ready for the team's annual "Waterama" fund raiser.

These boys and other members of the team are soliciting pledge monies from their friends, neighbors, and merchants in the community. The Barracudas promise to swim a lap for each pledge they receive. Donors can negotiate the cost for each lap when one of the swimmers comes with his or her Waterama sign-up sheet.

The diving members of the team will also solicit pledges, as they will promise to execute a given number of dives during their "Divarama" held in conjunction with their teammates' Waterama.

In years past, the Waterama money has gone to finance special swimming equipment for the use of the team and the Carmel High School swim program. However, since the passage of Prop. 13, the team no longer has the financial support of the Carmel Unified School District and has had to become entirely self-supporting. Thanks to community-wide interest in their activities, with the monthly fees that each family pays for participation, the team has been able to maintain most elements of their program.

Although community donations (through service clubs and individuals) are crucial to the operation of the team, the Waterama is an especially important fund-raiser which gives an opportunity for the children themselves to earn money in support of the team. Every Barracuda, from the littlest beginner to the strongest teen-ager is able to approach the Waterama as a full team effort.

The older children also work during the Crosby Golf Tournament (the Barracudas have been assigned car-parking detail for that event); but for the little swimmers this Waterama is their only fund-raising opportunity.

In addition to the pledges received from local merchants, three sports shops have contributed special incentives to the success of the Waterama. The Sports Barn, Intersport, and the Sports Nut will donate $5.00 credit coupons for each $50 a child turns in. While the coupons do not necessarily motivate the swimmers to solicit pledges since they are all anxious anyway to support their team, the existence of the coupons is an incentive to "round up" their Waterama sheets to $50, $100 and more. And when 150 children push to get the extra $15 or $20 dollars that will earn them another $5 credit coupon, the difference can be substantial.

Although pledges are being solicited now, the Waterama will take place July 11. On that Sunday, the high school pool and the Carmel Valley pool will be open from 7 a.m. for team members to swim their promised laps.

Carmel budget adopted without pay increases

By ROBERT MISKIMON

CARMEL ENTERED the new 1982-83 fiscal year on July 1 with an officially-adopted $4.7 million budget — but without any salary increases for its 108 city employees.

Employee organizations, for the first time in many years, have joined forces to present a unified request for an 11 percent salary increase with fringe benefits.

Employees have decided to negotiate a single agreement with the city of Carmel this year largely because of discrepancies between wage and benefit packages agreed upon between the city and the two employee associations last year, said Mary Jahr-Purvis, president of the City of Carmel Employees Association.

That organization represents about 45 "miscellaneous" city employees, including secretaries, street workers, building department employees, parks and forestry workers, among others.

The Carmel Safety Employees Association represents about 27 police employees and five fire employees.

The former organization was granted an 8.5 percent salary increase in fiscal year 1981-82, while the latter got a 10 percent pay increase. But miscellaneous employees had their life insurance coverage increased to $30,000, while safety employees continued their $20,000 coverage limit.

"We all went in separately last year," Ms. Jahr-Purvis said. "The public safety employees contacted us this year to see if we wanted to negotiate together and we agreed."

The 1982-83 budget adopted last week by the Carmel City Council provides $2.4 million for a continuation of the 1981-82 level of employee salary and fringe benefits, said City Administrator Doug Peterson.

If employees are granted the 11 percent salary increase they have requested, the additional expenditure of some $265,000 would have to be taken from the municipal general fund surplus, Peterson said.

The city administrator said he has held meetings with management representatives about salary increases but he refused to divulge specifics.

Peterson has held three negotiation sessions with employee representatives but no agreement on any specific items has been announced.

In addition to wage and fringe benefit requests, city employees have asked the city to continue payment of health and dental insurance premiums, and to make technical adjustments to the retirement fund. An increase of $15 per month in the clothing allowance for eligible employees also has been requested.

Employees have also asked that the city honor all previous agreements reflected in prior memoranda of understanding; specifically, this means employees want a formal grievance and promotion policy, Ms. Jahr-Purvis said.

•

"DOUG (Peterson) is our grievance procedure," Ms. Jahr-Purvis said.

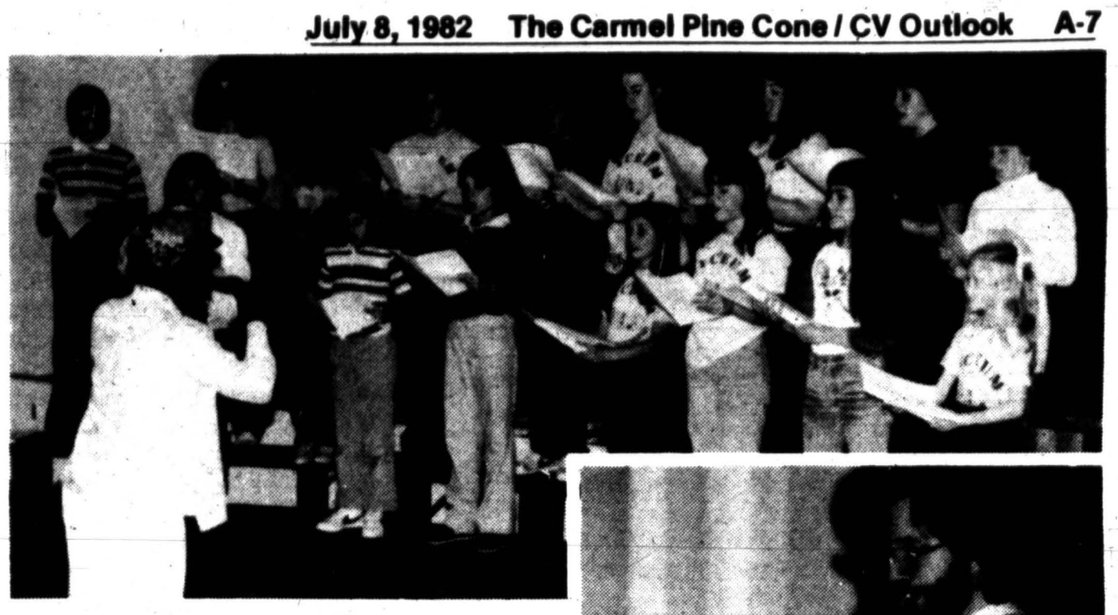

Before the city council adopted the 1982-83 budget, several adjustments were made to departmental allocations.

A total of $46,000 was added to the police department budget of $907,650 to hire a detective and desk officer requested by Police Chief John McGilvray. The chief asked for the positions to expedite handling of criminal cases in Carmel.

The council shifted $3,000 from the city council budget to the administration budget for printing of city council agenda materials, and added $1,000 to the $281,780 forestry department budget to correct a clerical error, Peterson said.

The final figure for capital improvements is $225,000 higher than the originally-budgeted amount of $799,375 because of a carry-over balance from the 1981-82 fiscal year for streets and storm drain improvements, Peterson said.

There are funds included in the new budget for construction of a portion of the beach walkway which has been supported by the forestry commission, as well as $50,000 earmarked for the purchase of computers to streamline city bookkeeping procedures.

Free Bach concert planned

THE LYCEUM-Carmel Bach Festival Summer Music Workshops will present a free concert in July to give students an opportunity to demonstrate in public what they have learned from the intensive three-week workshops taught by professional musicians who will perform in the Carmel Bach Festival. An instrumental performance will be at 3:30 p.m. July 8 at All Saints' Episcopal Church, southwest corner of Dolores Street and Ninth Avenue. Above, instrumental instructor Bill Harrington (standing) rehearses with student trumpet players Gil Tostevin and Ron Kamlan (far left), both Carmel residents. The choral workshop is under the direction of Priscilla Salgo and the instrumental workshop is under the direction of Fred Schlichting. (Photos by Deidi Kramer).

Carmel River School is alive this summer

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

SCHOOLS usually appear abandoned in the summer except for a few maintenance activities or visits from youngsters who want to play on the jungle gyms.

But Carmel River School is alive this summer with science classes, crafts, puppet shows and even recesses.

River School is where two special summer programs are operated through the Carmel Unified School District. One is a new project that offers enrichment courses, and a second is a special education program for the developmentally disabled.

In its first year, the summer enrichment program for students from six to 11 years old is so popular that both sessions are filled to capacity.

"We haven't had summer school here for several years. It's kind of exciting to have summer school here for the kids. I think there is a good chance that we can have it next year and maybe even expand into more sessions," Principal Vance Frasier said.

Teri Stott, president of the River School Site Council and one of the organizers of the program, hopes it will become a regular activity.

"We hope to have it next year. Judging from the enrollment, I know the demand for a summer program is there," Mrs. Stott said. "The real success depends on good teachers. We have good teachers now. If we can't good teachers next year, we won't do it."

Although it does not receive any funds from the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education, the summer program is financially solvent.

Parents were charged $60 tuition for the now-completed two week first session and the fee was $80 to enroll in the three-week program now in progress.

The tuition charges raised $5,000 for the enrichment program and covered staff salaries, building rental, supplies and field trips. A $1,000 surplus is anticipated, which will be used to buy a new copy machine for River School, Mrs. Stott said.

The tuition fee apparently did not discourage enrollment since both programs filled to capacity almost immediately, Mrs. Stott said.

Enrollment for the first two-week session, which ended July 2, was 60 students — 15 more than the originally estimated capacity of 45.

"We were trying to hold it to 45. We had such a tremendous response that we just made the program bigger," she said. "We're filled up for the next session. We are limiting it to 50 because I guaranteed we would have small class sizes."

The student-teacher ratio for the first session was 20-to-one and it has been reduced to about 16-to-one for the second program, Mrs. Stott said.

THE PROGRAM consists of three separate classes — theater-through-literature, science and art. The students, who are divided into separate age groups, rotate between the three classes from 9 a.m. until noon. There is also a recess.

"The classes are designed to be enrichment, not just skills. But I think there are a lot of skills involved," Frsier said. "It appears to be fun, but in reality I think the kids are more turned on to this school than they are to the academic school."

Dorothy Tilney, who teaches at River and Bay School during the regular school year, is enthusiastic about the enrichment program and about her art classes.

"I feel the enrichment program is really nice. There is so much to learning and there are so many ways to learn. So often the academics are stresses, but so many kids learn better through the arts," Mrs. Tilney said.

"I think the kids are very enthusiastic. A program like this takes the pressure off. You don't have to worry about tests and assignments. It allows them to learn by making a few mistakes. They don't have to worry about tests and getting every answer right."

'I think the kids are very enthusiastic. A program like this takes the pressure off. You don't have to worry about tests and assignments. It allows them to learn by making a few mistakes.

Mike Lewis, who teaches science at Carmel High School during the school year, said there is a difference between the two age groups.

"The difference I've found is the spontaneous questions that are always appearing. You don't get that at the high school level. They're so eager to learn here. I've very excited about the kids and their natural curiosity," Lewis said.

The literature-through-theater class is taught by Susan Estes, who was a teacher at Woods School last spring.

After reading a children's play or one of the Aesop Fables, the students act out scenes in the classroom. Some of the plays and puppet shows are original works written jointly by the students. Folk tales are acted out in puppet shows, said Mrs. Estes.

"We've had a wonderful time. I think it's been a creative experience for both the students and the teachers," Mrs. Estes said. "I'm amazed at the creativity that has flowed from the students these past two weeks. I really couldn't be happier."

Several students said they registered for the program to escape summer boredom and then found they enjoyed the classes.

"So I wouldn't be bored, I guess. It's a lot of fun now," said Kevin Winton, fifth grader. "I had Mrs. Tilney at my school last year so we did a lot of things that we are doing now. It's better than sitting at home and watching television."

Sixth grader Paul Russell said he took the class because he didn't have anything to do this summer. "This is fun. It's the best class I have ever gone to."

Sometimes "mom" played a role in their decision.

Brook Peterson, a fourth grader, said she attended the classes because "mom wanted me to. But now it's fun. We're doing plays and I'm learning a lot of new things."

•

FOURTH GRADER Rebecca Love agreed. "My mom wanted me to. She said it would be better for me than staying at home with a babysitter. It's fun, because there are fun things to do. I like art and drama the best," she said.

The program has also provided a summer job for two girls. Heather Powers and Elizabeth Dyer work as aides in the office and in the classroom for $3 per hour.

"It's a good summer job. I've learned a lot about kids and helping out in the office," said Miss Dyer, a sophomore at Carmel High School.

Asked if the job has helped her to decide whether to have children, she said: "I'll have my own, but I wouldn't want any others. They're too hard to discipline."

Miss Powers, a 1982 Carmel High School graduate, said the job has helped her prepare for a career working with youngsters. I'd like to do something with kids someday. This helps because it teaches me what it's like being around them," she said.

Another project at River School helps the developmentally handicapped.

The special education program has an enrollment of 35 students in kindergarten through eighth grade, teacher Joan Dilleon said.

Ms. Dillon said the special education program is divided into three separate classes — art, movement exploration and academics. Classes will continue through July 30.

The art program is taught by Steve Taylor, who instructs the students in a variety of media, including papier mache, clay, painting, leather crafts and mask-making.

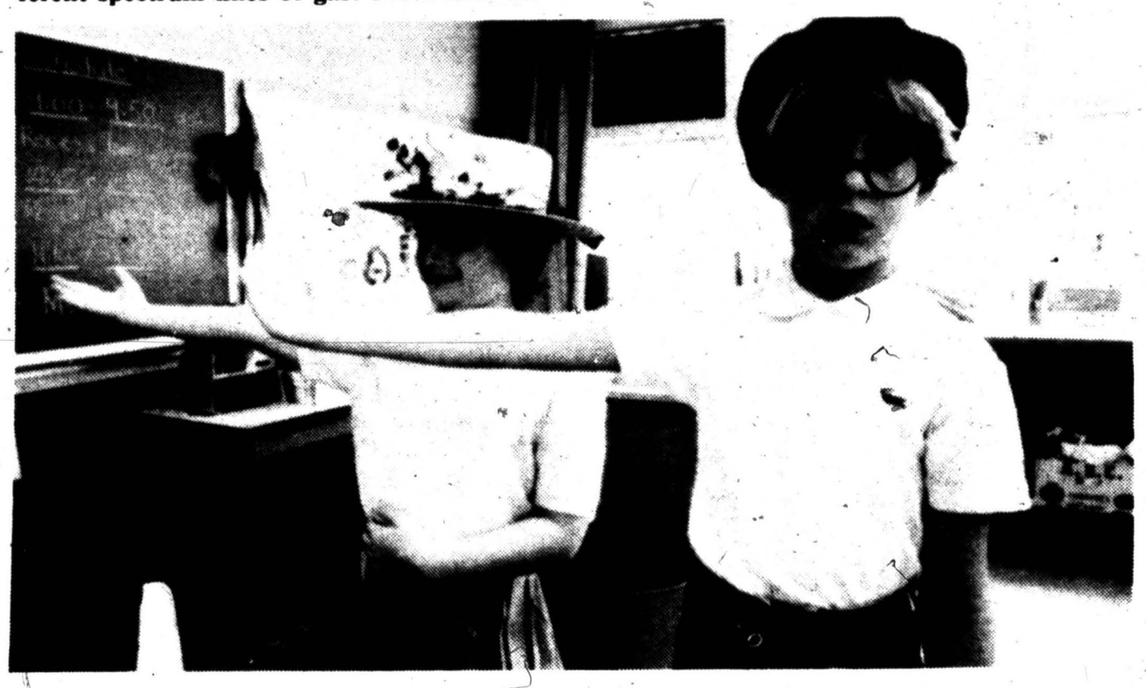

The academic program is divided into three ability levels. Teachers Pat Gillooly, Mary Kay Marchese and Jonathan Shoemaker work with the students in small groups in the areas of math, language reading and social skills.

Ms. Dillon teaches the movement exploration class that uses games to teach spelling and math.

"I do it because it is an essential part of development and it works with the total child," she said. "Rather than competitive games, I do cooperative games and play. The children also learn through play math and spelling. The games are played including math and spelling.

BROOK PETERSON said she registered for the classes because her mom wanted her to but soon discovered that the River School summer enrichment program was fun.

PAUL RUSSELL said the summer enrichment courses "are the best classes I've gone to."

JOAN DILLON teaches a movement exploration class as part of the summer special education program at River School.

Supervisors to hold another public hearing on Carmel area coastal plan

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors is to hold another public hearing on proposed Coastal Commission modifications to the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program at 2 p.m., Tuesday, July 13.

The Coastal Commission approved the plan in May with numerous conditions; the Monterey County Board of Supervisors now must either accept those conditions or propose further modifications to the plan before the LCP is finally approved.

Monterey County and the Coastal Commission have reached agreement on most substantive issues in the plan, except the questions of development density opposite the Palo Corona foothills and public access to Yankee Point and Malpaso beach, said county staff planner Susan Hilinski

The county has taken the position that development density behind the Palo Corona foothills should be the same as allowed in the 1980 Carmel Valley Master Plan — a maximum of one residential unit per 2.5 acres of land — while the Coastal Commission wants the maximum density at one unit per 40 acres, Ms. Hilinski said.

And the Coastal Commission has insisted on more liberal public access provisions at Yankee Point and Malpaso Beach than the county desires.

"The hearing is redundant," Ms. Hilinski said. "The net result will lead to a greater polarization over the plan. This whole thing could have been resolved a long time ago."

Ms. Hilinski said a staff report on the Carmel Area LCP will recommend formation of a committee of the board of supervisors and planning staff to meet with Coastal Commission staff to complete a plan acceptable to the Coastal Commission.

Ms. Hilinski has criticized the county handling of coastal plans — particularly the Del Monte Forest Local Coastal Program — and the involvement of Supervisors Michal Moore and William Peters. As far as the Carmel Area LCP is concerned, she said: "It's in a muddle."

Ed Brown, director of the regional Coastal Commission office in Santa Cruz, echoed Ms. Hilinski's observation about the complexity of the coastal planning process.

"I had not anticipated so much back-and-forth action and reaction between the commission and the counties," Brown said. "Each LCP in California has probably been back and forth three or four times; I don't think anyone anticipated this.

"But the process has been even more protracted in Monterey County because of the strong desire by the county to work out the details of the plan on their own," Brown said.

THE COASTAL COMMISSION and the county already have reached agreement on the future of the 134-acre eastern side of the Odello artichoke fields.

The Carmel Area LCP, as conditionally certified by the Coastal Commission, would permit development of as many as 162 residential units on the portion of the eastern Odello property which is outside the floodplain.

'The hearing is redundant,' Ms. Hilinski said. 'The net result will lead to a greater polarization over the plan. This whole thing could have been resolved a long time ago. As far as the Carmel Area LCP is concerned,' she said, 'It's in a muddle.'

The plan would also permit development of a farmer's market and restaurant on the Odello property. Although the plan affords fewer units than the 200 originally requested by the Odellos, it is a compromise from the original position taken by the Coastal Commission staff opposed to any development on the Odello property.

As accepted by the Coastal Commission, the Carmel Area LCP would allow development of a maximum of 800 new residences in the unincorporated area of Carmel, and as many as 400 additional new hotel units.

And the Coastal Commission has agreed to allow development of 240 hotel units on the Point Lobos Ranch, which includes the Hudson and Riley properties south of Carmel

A June 3 Coastal Commission staff report on the Carmel Area LCP suggests that a transfer of density credit system proposed in the plan could be implemented after the LCP is finally accepted by the commission.

The plan suggests that owners of properties in "resource conservation" areas designated with a very low density could sell development rights to be used elsewhere in areas of increased or higher density, similar to the TDC system proposed for the Big Sur coastal plan.

"A TDC system may be useful to achieve transfer of density credits from Odello east (or) transfer of density credits from the Big Sur area," the Coastal Commission staff indicated. "However, additional provisions — designation of receiver areas — may have to be amended into the plan before there would be a basis to implement such a system."

Carmel, Pebble Beach districts quietly end feud

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

A LENGTHY and often bitter money dispute between the Carmel and Pebble Beach sanitary districts appears to be almost ended.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver has ordered Pebble Beach to pay one-third the costs of the $18.2 million Carmel Sanitary District water reclamation project.

Pebble Beach had the option to appeal Judge Silver's ruling but the board of directors decided instead to write a check for $409,000 to cover its outstanding debt to Carmel.

The Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors had continued to bill Pebble Beach for one-third the costs monthly, even though the issue had yet to be decided by Silver.

Pebble Beach has also agreed to pay 7.5 percent interest on the outstanding debt, or a total of $17,771.

However, there is still one more roadblock to a final settlement. Carmel insists that Pebble Beach is liable for another $28,000 for capital outlay expenses. Pebble Beach board members have not yet decided whether to pay that claim.

State and federal grants pay 87.5 percent of the total project costs and the local districts pay 12.5 percent.

The fight over payment for the project began more than three years ago when Carmel began to seek a way to meet a state mandate to cease discharge of effluent into Carmel Bay between May and October. Carmel Bay is designated by the state as an Area of Special Biological Significance.

When the state issued its order to cease the discharge of effluent, Carmel hired Kennedy/Jenks Engineers of San Francisco to develop alternatives.

After several meetings, the alternatives were reduced from 43 to six. Carmel then decided to build a reclamation project, which will provide tertiary-treated effluent for sale to golf courses for irrigation.

However, Pebble Beach protested the project and challenged the ASBS decision. The Pebble Beach district has a contract with the Carmel district for sewage treatment and disposal.

In 1981, the Carmel district filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court that sought a court order to force Pebble Beach to pay its one-third share of the reclamation project costs. Pebble Beach claimed that it was not liable for costs of a project that it did not authorize.

In October of 1981, the war of words heated up in a meeting of the Carmel board of directors, after Pebble Beach suggested that the two districts join forces to fight the ASBS designation.

"It is difficult on a daily basis to understand where Pebble Beach Sanitary District is coming from because they are constantly shifting their position from one objective to another," Carmel Manager Michael Zambory said in a directors' meeting.

Zambory claimed that the request is nothing more than a disguised attempt to "destroy the early start reclamation-disposal project."

A month later, after the lawsuit had been heard and was before Judge Silver for a decision, Pebble Beach offered an "olive branch" to Carmel.

Pebble Beach Sanitary District Board President Richard Lord appeared before the Carmel board. "I come forward with an olive branch. Now that we've finished our trial and got out of our system the 'I'll sue' syndrome, we don't think we've won anything. "There are a lot of things we should look at together," Lord suggested.

A suggestion by Lord to form a joint committee of the two boards was opposed by Carmel counsel Don Freeman, who said it would be better to wait until the lawsuit was settled.

On Dec. 11, Silver issued his notice of intended decision that Pebble Beach is bound by its treatment and disposal contract with Carmel to pay one-third the costs of the water reclamation project.

However, the two attorneys were asked to write their own "findings of law" on the decision and to submit reports to the judge.

Those findings of law conflicted, so Silver prepared a decision

Carmel Highlands fire chief Meloney retires; goes fishin'

INSIDE THE gas station garage where Bob Meloney used to work as a youngster about four decades ago, was parked a shiny red fire engine.

When the bells rang, volunteers would race the engine to the fire scene as the boy watched and hoped to join them someday.

Meloney turned those boyhood dreams into 36 years of firefighting experience, until July 1 when he peeled off the Carmel Highlands Fire District gear for the last time, grabbed a fishing pole and retired to a small town in northwest Pennsylvania.

Chief of the Carmel Highlands Fire District since April of 1973, Meloney has relinquished his badge to former Capt. Frederick "Skee" Stanley, II. In addition, Vern Allred, Jr. has been promoted to captain and Stewart Roth has been elevated from volunteer to paid apparatus engineer.

The personnel changes were approved by the Carmel Highlands Fire District Board of Directors and were effective July 1.

On his next-to-the-last day of employment, Meloney was in a jovial mood. He listened to country and western music on the radio, joked with his replacement about rescuing tourists who had accidently locked themselves out of their cars, and recalled his early days in an interview with the Pine Cone-/Outlook.

"I don't know. Why does anyone want to get into this business?" was his answer to a question why he decided to become a firefighter. "You get up out of bed at two in the morning, get soaking wet and exhausted. Why? You tell me? I guess it's just in me. It's like anything that's in you. You just do it.

"I think probably one of the reasons is that, at the time, I was working at a gas station. They kept the fire truck in the garage. Every time there was a fire they would leave without me and I wanted to go with them."

MELONEY JOINED a volunteer squad 36 years ago in a small suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa. and continued to volunteer as the family moved westward.

In March of 1966 Meloney was hired as a paid firefighter by the city of Carmel. He stayed in that position until Carmel Highlands Fire District Chief Seizo Kodani retired in 1973. Meloney, then a captain, was offered the job as chief.

Meloney's most memorable fire occurred two weeks after he assumed his new post on April 13, 1973. A car passed another vehicle on Highway 1 and slammed head-on into a gasoline tanker. Two people were killed.

"It was just after I got here. We weren't prepared for that quantity of gas," he said. "The city brought in its foam and that was still not enough. We finally had to get the crash truck from the airport. We got there at 15 minutes till seven and we didn't get the fire out until two-thirty or three in the morning."

Meloney said there have been "so many advances in firefighting technology that it would take several notebooks to list all of them.

"I could write a book on those. There's been a lot," he said. "The major change would have to be air masks. I never saw one until 1965; we always used the all purpose masks. That's probably the most significant thing I've seen since I've been in the business."

Meloney said he once found himself in a situation where he felt he could not escape.

"Oh, a couple of times I've been in a smoke-filled building and all of a sudden get apprehensive. You don't know the building or where you are going. I don't think I've ever been in the panic stage," he said.

Meloney did recall one time when he was a volunteer in Pennsylvania that a situation became "scary."

"One time we were on a mutual aid call. There was one-half of a block on fire. I was sitting on an aerial ladder in front of a hardware store," he said. "Back in those days the hardware stores sold ammunition for hunting season. All of a sudden that ammunition started going off. I got off that aerial in a hurry."

But despite a few close calls, Meloney said he has no regrets. "It's been fun. I have had a lot of fun."

Meloney planned to leave Carmel July 1 to hunt and fish in Pennsylvania.

"We're going to sit back and take it easy. There's a lot of hunting and fishing to do. My wife, Betty, likes to water ski. We'll probably do a lot of that."

Meloney said he believes this is the right time to retire. "I've spent enough time chasing fires. You should retire when you're young enough to enjoy it."

Meloney's replacement, Frederick Stanley, was born and raised in Carmel.

"I came home from school in the summer and my father asked me what kind of plans I had. I said 'None' and he said, 'Why don't you go fight fires?' " Stanley explained.

Stanley spent several summers as a seasonal firefighter with the California Department of Forestry. During that time he fought the 176,000-acre Laguna Mountain fire in the Los Angeles area in 1970 that burned out of control for three weeks.

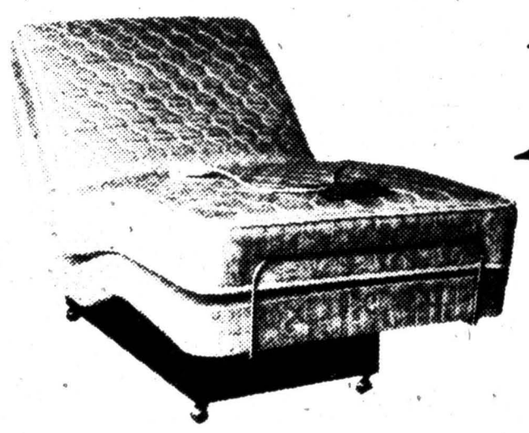

He joined the Carmel Hill CDF unit as a fire apparatus engineer but lost his job in 1972 because of budget reductions.

Stanley was hired at the Carmel Highlands Fire District and assumed his duties on Jan. 13, 1973. He was promoted to captain June 1, 1978. He and his wife, Sienna, make their home in the Highlands area.

Stanley has assumed command of a station that has four paid firefighters and two engines. It also has a volunteer unit.

Although voters have rejected tax increases to keep the station open, a group of residents has raised about $35,000 to help carry the Carmel Highlands Fire District through fiscal year 1982-83.

Carmel Youth Baseball

By WENDY BANKS

Under sunny Fourth of July skies, the friendly rivalry between Carmel and Carmel Valley came to a split decision. The Texaco Lions, who had captured first place in the Valley's Little League Major Division, shut out La Playa 5-0, representing Carmel's Youth Baseball's Bronco Division.

In what turned out to be a real pitching duel, Rene Diaz and Simon Laguens took control from the mound and allowed no hits while striking out seven and eight batters, respectively, and giving up only two walks. Diaz also tripled and went two for three; Elsberry scored twice and had an RBI. Latendre went two for three and Urzua put the Lions on the scoreboard on an overthrow in the third inning. La Playa's pitcher Paul Wagstaff only gave up two hits in the first three innings before being relieved by Eric Cederstrom and Chip Meheen.

In another pitching duel, Derek Rayne, representing Carmel as winner of the Bronco round robin, shut out the Wills Fargo Tigers 2-0. Craig Cox was credited with the win with help from Brett Ledbetter. Pitching well for the Tigers were Dan Lind, Jason Watts, and Jim Courtney; Courtney also doubled.

Christian Cummings and Josh Banks both doubled for the winners and Cummings and Eric Mahlum had the only two RBIs. Banks also stole third when the Tigers thought the third inning was over. Cox, playing catcher, picked off a runner leading off first base. Baseball fans, family and friends were the recipients of a fine barbecue and prizes during this annual Carmel Valley event.

The All-Star selections have been made by the coaches in each division. The youngsters were chosed on sportsmanship, ability, and availability. Beginning with the Mustang All-Star Tournament in Pacific Grove on July 6, the following Carmel players will play: Aaron Bliesner, Braulio DeAnda, Scott Gill, Will Griffith, Daniel Kleinbardt, Matthew Little, Carlos Moore, Michael Parrish, Russell Peavey, Chris Prieto, Rick Prieto, Andy Rotharmel, Scott Smith, Robbie Takigawa, Aram Vesper, and Steven White. Honorary members are: Gabriel Montgomery-Downes, Erin Saluta, Benno Weiner, and Kevin Winton.

BUD ALLEN received a large trophy from members of the La Playa Bronco baseball team who won first place in the 1982 Carmel Youth Baseball, bronco division, season. Allen, who is the owner of La Playa, sponsored the squad. The first place trophy was presented to him at a party June 30. At the presentation were (from left, standing) Michael Little, scorekeeper Clyde Klaumann, Jeff LeTowt, coach Buzz Cole, Bud Allen, manager Bud Westcott, Mindy Faia, Paul Wagstaff, Clyde Klaumann, Erik Sincoff and team mother Susie Faia. Kneeling were, (from left) Chip Meheen, Eric Cederstrom, Edward Han and Eric LeTowt. Not pictured was Rein Wildschut. (M.G. photo).

Playing in the Carmel sponsored Bronco All-Star Tournament July 24 are: Josh Banks, Beau Brushert, Bobby Carroll, Craig Cox, David Faber, Brett Ledbetter, Michael Little, Ali Monroe, Darren Read, Jeff Roberts, Erik Sincoff, and Paul Wagstaff. Rein Wildschut was named as an honorary member.

July 10 will see the 13-year-old Pony All-Stars play in Marina. Those selected were: Jason Anderson, Warren Coutney, Brian Dalton, Chris Erban, Morgan Hill, Greg Hinton, Daniel Hopkins, Tim Lee, Nick Long, Kent Rullman, Marc Russak, David Stainbrook, Tim Spaulding and Kerry Woodson. Brennon Langley is an honorary member.

The Pony All-Stars will begin post-season play in Monterey on July 17. Those nominated include: Mike Allard, Chip Aronson, Danny Gibbons, Guy Giraudo, Chris Hall, Mike Lee, Brian O'Neil, Sal Lucido, Steve Radowitz, Steve St. Germain, Berndt Stolfi, Mike Takigawa, Paul Wirtz, Brett Wise and Robert Zarazua.

The girls' minor league softball All-Star team is announced and the following girls will begin play on July 19: Caroline Borges, Becky Eskine, Jackie Gardner, Kim Gisse, Hallie Levy, Sandy Morris, Jamie Parrish, Janine Pullen, Monica Reardon, Emily Rubin, Richelle Rudinski, Suzanne Suwada and Valerie Wester. Megan Hanson, Nancy Penn and Tyana Saxby were all honorary members.

The major league girls' softball All-Star team is comprised of: Angela Acuna, Elizabeth Borelli, Deanna DeRuosi, Amy Fuller, Tammi Fuller, Teri Giammanco, Anita Knauss, Lori Palma, Tiffany Powers, Dawn Rea, Elvina Scott, Carol Sepersky and Stacey White. Their tournament starts July 17.

BROOK RILEY of Carmel holds the cover of a new tourist guide book designed just for children that has been prepared by students in the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula summer program called "Write On." Brook is the proof editor of the book.

Students prepare tourist book for the younger set

A TOURIST studiously reading a guide book is a common sight in Carmel, but soon there will be a different kind of directory on the Monterey Peninsula designed for children.

Students of the summer "Write On" program at the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula have prepared a tourist guide that details free or inexpensive places for children to visit.

The 24-page guide book is expected to be delivered to book stores on the Monterey Peninsula by late July. Cost of the book will be $3.95 and $2 of the purchase price is tax deductible.

"It's more or less the standard places to visit, but it's from a kid's point of view," said Kitty Drew, instructor for the "Write On" program.

"We looked around and there is nothing that includes things for kids to do while the parents are shopping or wine tasting," she said. "This will give information on things to do that are for kids and are free or inexpensive."

The book, which is titled Write On — To Color, includes drawings and short poems about the tourist attractions. A poem about the Carmel Mission:

"Father Serra played an important role.
Building missions was his goal.
He built them strong, to last
They're a reminder of our past."

The book also includes a listing of telephone numbers of places included in the book and also a map of the area.

"All of the drawings and poems are done by the children. They even called the lawyer to see if the purchase price is tax deductible," said Ms. Drew.

Some of the places included in the book are Carmel Mission, Point Lobos, the Monterey County fairgrounds, Asilomar, Lovers Point in Pacific Grove and Fisherman's Wharf.

The students, who range in ages from eight to 13, have also prepared postcards and stationery for sale.

Ms. Drew said a preview party for the book will be celebrated July 24 but a location and time have not been determined.

Students who developed the book are: J.B. Leedy, Jason and Fabienne Frey, Brook Riley, Marcie Olsen, Kristi Thomas, Jennie Roland, Jennifer Carr and Kier Buechel.

July Fourth on the beach in Carmel

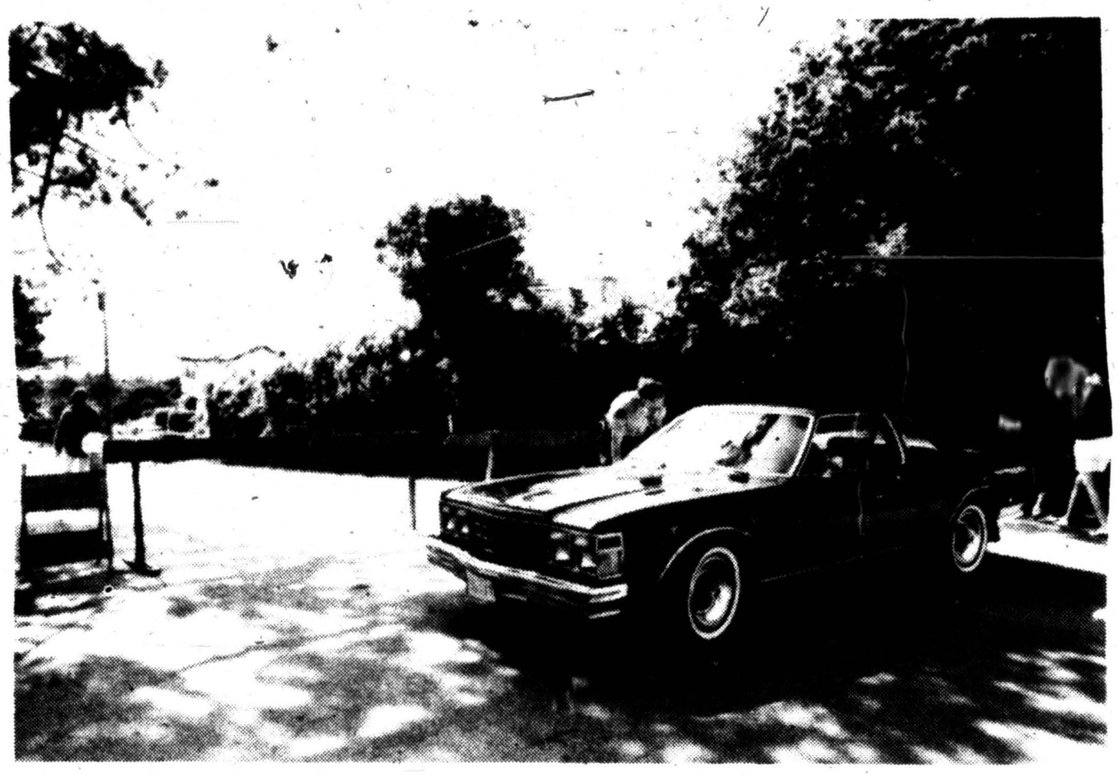

THESE BOATERS found a way to escape the throngs by staying on the water instead of on Carmel Beach. (Michael R. Gardner photos).

Pine Cone photos by Michael R. Gardner

BECAUSE OF STRICTER parking controls and the banning of certain kinds of fireworks and large bonfires, fewer than 3,000 people flocked to Carmel Beach for July 4 festivities, far below the estimated 10,000 that congregated last year.

Parking restrictions worked ... mostly

TO DISCOURAGE the huge crowds from flocking to Carmel Beach, the city council enacted an ordinance that banned parking on streets near the beach on July 4. Carmel Police Sgt. Jerry Pullen reported that only two cars had to be towed away for illegal parking. The city hired a tow truck for $500 to tow the cars. The owners of the illegally parked cars were cited, but did not have to pay a towing fee, Pullen said. The barricade above, one of many that surrounded the beach area, was manned by Monterey County Sheriff Deputy Paul Locke, who reported few problems during his afternoon shift. Pullen said the city hired eight officers from outside agencies to help control the crowds. Cost of the additional manpower was about $1,275, he said. Carmel police worked 169 hours of overtime July 4 for an estimated cost of $2,500, Pullen reported.

A SUNNY Fourth of July in Carmel brought about 3,000 people to Carmel Beach, who enjoyed barbeques in the early afternoon. Above, a group of Japanese tourists found shade at the beach for a large barbeque.

A CITY ban on parking along several streets near Carmel Beach worked almost to perfection July 4. Only two cars were towed, said Police Sgt. Jerry Pullen.

Business Beat

When is clothing a novelty in Carmel?

By FLORENCE MASON

WHEN IS a T-shirt not a T-shirt?

When is clothing a novelty, rather than apparel? These were two of a number of questions raised at a recent meeting of the Carmel Business License and Code Review Board.

At first, the application of "Classic Shirts" to move into the Ocean Avenue space vacated by Favela and Co. seemed simple enough. But the ensuing discussion led to a decision that City Atty. George Brehmer should draft conditions for the store's operation related to city zoning laws and intended to "protect the future."

Classic Shirts application for a business license was approved, subject to those conditions, with one negative vote (by Sandy Swain, who described herself as "uncomfortable" with the situation).

The store's parent corporation is the Mainland Co., which owns 15 other stores — 12 in the Hawaiian Islands and three in California. Steven Moder, president of the company, told the board that he was the successful bidder in bankruptcy proceedings for the Ocean Avenue property and that he wants Classic Shirts to be "in line with the beauty and environment of Carmel."

He said the company started 20 years ago as "Crazy Shirts" in Hawaii, the first to screen-print T-shirts.

"Over the years," he assured the board, "we've become very conservative. The company evolved into the manufacture of embroidered sportswear, ladies' lightweight jackets, beach clothing and Norfleet knit shirts.

"We do sell T-shirts, among these other things and the way we do it makes it hard for others to complete," Moder said. Moder showed samples of the various items as he mentioned them. He added that the T-shirts and all the other items would come to the Carmel store ready to sell. They are screen printed elsewhere, with no on-the-spot imprinting of names or slogans.

There was some discussion about merchandise to be displayed in store windows. Moder said the emphasis would be on sportswear, with full mannikins.

Then the board members had questions about zoning and moratorium restrictions. Planning Director Bob Griggs said that Classic Shirts would be a men's and women's clothing store — not a novelty shop — and therefore would not violate the current moratorium which restricts certain kinds of businesses.

Brehmer voiced concerns about gift shops that sell novelties and souvenirs — including clothing that would have its primary value in what is written on it — and about restrictions on secondary or subordinate businesses (acceptable only if the subordinate aspect is 25 percent or less of the total business). The city attorney said the point is not so much whether the shirt would be imprinted here, but whether the merchandise itself is apparel or a novelty item. Building Inspector Ron Warren echoed Sandy Swain's "discomfort" with the proposed shop. Warren said he is worried about what direction it might take in the future, not about the merchandise Moder displayed.

Moder's reply to these concerns was that it would be hard to find a company more selective or more demanding of quality.

"The art work on shirts, for example, must be approved by a committee of four. Our shops are in the top locations in the islands, including the Hyatt Regency and the Ala Moana shopping center. We've been successful for 20 years with the quality we have," Moder said.

With most of the members of the board apparently reassured, a motion to approve the Mainland Co. application subject to conditions to be drafted by the city attorney passed. Only Sandy Swain dissented.

Moder said the company will employ a resident manager. Inside improvements estimated to cost around $70,000 are planned and he expressed concern for the appearance of the areas outside the store as well.

"Can we plant around the trees?" he asked. He was assured that such improvements would be considered in collaboration with city authorities.

T-SHIRTS IN THE NEWS ... AGAIN

Bryan Whitehead, who applied for a license to open "Zucchini's Tricks 'N Things" in the mall on San Carlos, also came up against the Business License and Code Review Board's concern for quality in Carmel, a concern that seemed to be focused on T-shirts.

Whitehead described his proposed business as a magic shop, with retail sale of magic items, novelties and T-shirts with transfer designs. The board members had no problem with the magic. It was those T-shirts again.

In this case, the shirts would be imprinted to order in the store; Whitehead estimated these novelty items would account for about 33 percent of the business. Brehmer and Griggs concurred that a use permit would be required under the city's moratorium against certain new businesses.

The board agreed to approve Whitehead's application, subject to a use permit. This left him with the unattractive option of opening his business without T-shirts, which he said might not be a sufficiently profitable operation.

Whitehead, who owns a Cannery Row store with the same name, told me that he plans to apply for a use permit. "I don't know if the landlord can hold that location for me," he said. "I may have to look for another."

The magical side of the business includes tricks and jokes for parties — "entertaining all day long with magic for kids and adults." Fire Marshal Vern Allred said the magic can be educational as well as entertaining. "We use magic tricks in fire department work with children," he said. "It holds their attention!"

THE CARMEL Business License and Code Review Board grappled with the question "when is a T-shirt not a T-shirt" at a recent meeting.

...AND YET AGAIN

Speaking of T-shirts, the Carmel Shirt Works is for sale. The shop, on Mission Street near Ocean Avenue, is owned by Lou Thiesen, who says he wants a better climate, referring to both business and the weather.

"I really want to get away from this fog, to go somewhere where it is warmer," he said. As for business: "I've been here three years. Business is slow and it's not getting better. Even this week!" (The week of the U.S. Open.)

"There are 50,000 people out there on the golf course and there are cars everywhere in Carmel. But there aren't that many more customers. It's one of the slowest weeks of the year; a sad state of affairs, not just here but across the country."

The Shirt Works has been selling hats and imprinted sportswear as well as T-shirts.

NO T-SHIRTS INVOLVED IN THIS LEGAL PROBLEM

Converting an apartment to an office is the issue facing Tom and Carol Stratton, who want to establish an investment office upstairs on Dolores Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, adjacent to the post office parking lot.

Stratton told the business license board that he purchased the building in January and planned to use the apartment for his private investment business. He expressed surprise when told that a city moratorium prohibits such conversions.

"I thought we were clear about this," he told the board. "There must have been a misunderstanding. The space had a prior use as a bookstore before it was an apartment and I thought it could come back to commercial use."

Not so, said Planning Director Bob Griggs. "It's an outright prohibition; there's no provision for exceptions or variances," Griggs said. He added that the same restriction would apply to the small house on the property that is now in use as a residence.

Stratton was obviously concerned. "It would be a terrible hardship not to be able to use it after we invested so much to buy the property," he said.

City Administrator Doug Peterson suggested referring Monterey Capital's application to the city council and city attorney. Peterson said the Business License and Code Review Board "has no power to vote a business license because it would be against the zoning regulations of the city."

HOME IS THE DOCTOR

Shreve Archer, M.D., is "a local boy coming home." The young physician, who grew up in this area, has returned from medical school to begin practice as a pediatrician. Dr. Archer has joined Drs. Barry Gendelman and Alan Rosen in offices in the Carmel Hill Professional Center.

Not only Dr. Archer, but his parents are long-time Peninsulans. His mother is a member of the Doud family and that makes his son, Damon, a sixth generation Peninsulan. Dr. Archer's wife, Bonnie, was born at the old Carmel Hospital.

The young physician went to Carmel Valley School when it was at the location now occupied by Rippling River, and graduated from Robert Louis Stevenson School. His first academic interest was psychology and that led him to consider a career as a psychiatrist. But his first rotation in pediatrics showed him clearly what he really liked. The earlier interest was not abandoned, since he still has a special concern, as a pediatrician, with child behavior.

Dr. Archer went to medical school at the University of Miami in Florda and completed his internship and residency at Children's Hospital in Oakland.

Racing motorcyles is an avocation that he doesn't have

CORRECTION:

In the July 1 "Business Beat" column we identified one of the jewelers who entered a complaint about the number of jewelry stores in town as "Kirkor Kocek, owner of Kocek Jeweler." This was the name appearing, along with that of Gary Goldstein, owner of B&G Traders, on the agenda of the June 17 meeting of the Business License and Code Review Board.

In fact, the man who supports Goldstein's point of view is Kirkor's brother, Hampar, of Studio Jewelers. Although the letter in which the complaint was formalized was signed only by Gary Goldstein, Hampar agrees about the proliferation of jewelry stores in Carmel and had intended to appear with Goldstein at the BLCRB meeting.

We regret any inconvenience or embarrassment this may have caused Kirkor Kocek. Although he is listed in city business license records as the owner of both Kocek Jeweler and Studio Jewelers, he was not involved in this issue as it was presented to the BLCRB.

BAGELS HAVE come to The Crossroads with the opening of The Bagel Bakery co-owned by River Gurtin (left) and managed by Christon Leetham. (M.G. photos).

much time for now. His family and "getting to know the Monterey Peninsula again," claim his free time.

BAGELS, BAGELS, EVERYWHERE

Now open at The Crossroads: The Bagel Bakery. It's the fourth location for this fast-growing business, which began in Pacific Grove just six years ago.

Owners Bill Leone and River Gurtin traveled to New York to learn the trade first-hand from third generation "Bagelmasters."

Their bagels, baked three to four times daily, are made from unbleached glutin flour which contains no cholesterol. They come plain, with poppy seeds or sesame, and flavored with onion, garlic or other special flavors.

There is a 22-seat restaurant at The Crossroads location, for those who prefer to eat their bagels there, or to have bagel sandwiches, omelettes and blintzes, served with specially-blended coffee.

All of this is toward the back of The Crossroads, next to the administrative offices and behind Wells Fargo Bank. Or, just follow your nose.

BOOKS FOR SALE

"I want to do some of the things I've been thinking about doing for the last five years." That's the explanation Loretta Romis gives for wanting to sell her book store in Carmel Valley Village.

Mrs. Romis has owned The Village Book Store for all of those five years. It's in the White Oaks Plaza and its 1,000 square feet are nicely filled with books of all sorts — a "general trade book store" now for sale.

Loretta Romis and her husband, Jerry, live in the Valley. She mentioned a wide spectrum of interests: the out-of-doors, photography, hiking, reading and music. That suggests she'll have no trouble filling her time when she turns over the store to a new owner.

A NOTE FROM THE COLLECTION

New at The Collection in The Crossroads: a boutique home and garden shop. There are flowering plants, fountains, garden statuary and kitchen fixtures, the latter in maple, cherry, peacn and copper. There are also garden carts and wrought iron stands.

Also new at The Collection since it first opened is Lisa McGuire, who grew up on the Peninsula and graduated from Monterey High School.

UPBEAT

A note from Wendy Lazer, one of the owners of Prestige Properties, is a cheerful contrast to the tales of business woe that are all too common these days.

Mrs. Lazer, her husband Charles and a third partner, Diane Robinson, opened the real estate business here in April, 1980. She takes understandable pride in the fact that in two years "and with a lot of hard work" the firm has grown to be "the largest single non-franchised office in the area." It was Wendy Lazer who won an award from the Carmel Board of Realtors for selling the most property in 1981.

Prestige Properties has just mailed out a "sampler" of Monterey Peninsula Properties to 8,000 potential clients. The brochure repeats a number of the pencil drawings of their listings that line one wall of the San Carlos Street office.

The staff, which has grown to 28 agents, is as used to answering tourists' questions across the open Dutch door as they are to showing properties.

Diane Robinson grew up in this area; the Lazers were Realtors in San Jose for many years before they moved to Carmel in 1975.

Ed Metzger as Albert Einstein: The Practical Bohemian

Sat., Oct. 16, 1982

If you expect to hear a science lecture, you'll be disappointed. Although he might mention $E=MC^2$ and some scientific phrases might pop up here and there, actor Ed Metzger's portrayal of Albert Einstein concentrates on the humorous, the anecdotal, the personal side of the genius's life. You'll walk away having experienced something very special in the theater.

Martha Schlamme

A Cabaret Concert

Wed., Nov. 7, 1982

"Martha Schlamme has a communicative power that cannot fail to move." Ms. Schlamme began her career in Europe where she acquired her expertise in the famous German theater songs by Brecht and Weill. She has appeared on Broadway in Fiddler on the Roof, Mata Hari, and the New York City Opera's production of the Threepenny Opera. She records for Vanguard and Folkway Records.

Chinese Magic Circus of Taiwan

Tues., Jan. 10, 1983

This will be the third visit of the incredible acrobats, dancers, and magicians from Taiwan. If you missed them before, this is your chance to see them. If you have seen them before, this is your chance to catch their new virtuoso display of circus-cum-ballet-cum-magic show.

The Brass Band

Sat., April 9, 1983

Humor in music is relatively rare — but there have been master composers — Mozart, Ibert, Sousa — who have managed to convey more or less subtle humor in "digging" at colleagues, situations, or just music itself. The Brass Band is that rare talented group that, while a most professional music act, can convey the humor of the music to their audiences. They are sometimes referred to as the Marx Brothers of Music.

Back by Popular Demand! Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo

Wed., Feb. 16, 1983

What can we say except that they demanded to bring their all new program to our community. They don't invent comedy. They expose the humor implicit in ballet conventions. Their parodies are sophisticated and affectionate. A very specal evening of dance and ...

Water district board to weigh dam projects

THE BOARD of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District will take a serious look at a proposed Arroyo Seco River dam when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Monday, July 12.

The board meets in Monterey City Council chambers at Pacific and Madison streets.

Directors will discuss the potential for the Arroyo Seco dam to provide water to the Monterey Peninsula, as an alternative to construction of a dam on the upper Carmel River with a 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity.

The Arroyo Seco dam project proposed by the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District could provide 43,000 ac. ft. of storage at a cost of $113 million for Salinas Valley only use, 80,000 ac. ft. of storage — with 22,000 ac. ft. for the Monterey Peninsula — at an estimated cost of $150 million.

CH2M Hill, a consulting firm hired by Monterey County to study the Arroyo Seco project, estimated that the cost to the Monterey Peninsula for the Arroyo Seco dam would be $207 per acre foot of storage for a 21,500 ac. ft. capacity; the estimated cost for the proposed new San Clemente dam is $211 per acre foot of storage.

In other business, the water management board will proceed with environmental study of the proposed San Clemente dam on the upper Carmel River.

The board will review an initial study on the project to determine whether a full-blown environmental impact report needs to be prepared for the dam. If authorized by the board of directors, the EIR will take about one year to complete, said manager Bruce Buel. The board has allocated about $80,000 in the 1982-83 budget for an EIR which would be partially staff-prepared.

The board must hold a public hearing in August to review the scope of work for the EIR.

Water management directors also are to consider taking official steps to initiate a ballot measure to seek voter approval for the proposed San Clamente dam.

"The board is expected to adopt a resolution initiating both a ballot measure on the dam itself and a bond to finance the construction of the project," Buel said. "It is expected that the ballot would be placed before the voters sometime during the summer of 1983.

"In order to place the measure on the ballot, the district must first get approval from all the cities on the Peninsula and adopt an engineering report that specifies who will pay for the project and how the project will be operated."

Directors will also be asked to authorize the filing of a water rights permit application with the State Water Resources Control Board for approval of the proposed San Clemente dam. That approval must be obtained before the district can proceed with the project, Buel said.

The board of directors will also consider authorization of a study to compare the cost, yield, and fisheries impact of the new San Clemente dam with the proposed Seaside underground water recharge project, and with the Arroyo Seco dam project.

In another item closely linked to the San Clemente dam project, the board is to define financing and a scope of work for the proposed $150,000-per-year Carmel River management program, intended to control river bank erosion by re-establishment of vegetation.

"Assuming that the board can specify the proposed details of the program, an engineering report can be finished and a public hearing set on formation of a (river management) zone at the Aug. 9 board meeting," Buel said.

SPRINGS AZUR AND HIGH VOLTAGE NAMED CHAMPION OF CHAMPIONS

At the International Arabian Horse Association Region III Championship show June 26 and 27 in Santa Rosa, Springs Azur, a Half Arabian mare ridden by Doug Haverly, and Hi Voltage, an Arabian stallion owned and shown by Patience Prine, both won the honor of "Champion of the Champions." Miss Prine and Haverly are from Carmel.

Spring's Azur and Haverly won the championship for Half Arabian Western Pleasure, Owner Amateur to Ride. Haverly and his wife, Sharman Smith Haverly, own the 12-year-old Half Arab mare. With this win, Spring Azur has compiled the required winning points to be awarded the IAHA Legion of Merit Achievement award to be presented at the Half Arabian Horse show July 17-18 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Miss Prine and Hi Voltage were the winners of the Ladies Side Saddle event and were named top five in the Purebred Arabian English Pleasure, Owner Amateur to Ride event. Hi Voltage will also receive the achievement award, IAHA Legion of Honor at the Half Arabian Horse show.

To compete in the IAHA regional championship show, all horses must have won a championship in a Class A show in the region, which includes all of Northern California.

GRANITO ELECTED

Frank Granito is the new commander of Carmel American Legion Post 512 for 1982-83.

Also elected were: Ted Fehr, first vice commander; Jim Collins, second vice commander; and Paul Artellan, adjutant.

The new officers were installed May 28 at a joint ceremony with the Marina American Legion Post 694.

On stage

California's First Theater brings the fun and good humor of melodrama to the stage with The Drunkard. The audience is encouraged to boo and hiss the villain and cheer the hero as he rescues the damsel in distress! This 19th century production is performed by the Troupers of the Gold Coast.

Showtime is 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday throughout July. Admission is $4 adults, $3 teens and $2 for subteens any night but Saturday.

Tickets may be purchased at the First Theater, Scott and Pacific streets, Monterey, after 1 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. For further information, phone 375-4916.

•

California First Theater also presents Jenny, Jewel of the West, at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday throughout July.

•

The Wharf Theater stages The Little Foxes, Lillian Hellman's virulent drama about a greedy clan of Southerners at the turn of the century. The play explores the hatred and destruction that follow in the wake of a ferocious grab for a fortune.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays through July 11 at the theater, Old Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey.

Tickets are $6 and $8. For reservations and information, phone 372-2882.

•

The Studio Theatre Restaurant offers the hilarious comedy, Critic's Choice. Written by Ira Levin, the play tells the story of a New York critic whose wife writes and produces a play which he is forced to review.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the play begins at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays, Friday and Saturday evenings through July 10. Dinner and curtain are one hour earlier on Sunday.

TED BALESTRERI

Ted Balestreri honored

The American Dream; local boy (girl) makes good; rags to riches; these are some of the themes embodied in the activities of the American Academy of Achievement, a non-profit organization dedicated to the inspiration of youth — to raise their sights high, to excel in their endeavors.

A dramatic annual salute is given to Captains of Achievement from all/walks of life and honor students from across the nation, at the Banquet of the Golden Plate — held this year on June 26 in New Orleans.

Ted J. Balestreri of Pebble Beach was invited by Judge John J. Sirica and Joseph C. Canizaro to be a guest of honor and receive the Golden Plate Award at the banquet, "in tribute to your extraordinary accomplishment."

Balestreri was one of 30 new guests of honor — each a distinguished representative of the many who excel in chosen professions, — who were brought together in a unique "gathering of the greats" and who in turn shared their wisdom and experience with 350 of America's young leaders of tommorrow, including 40 national champions of every prestigious youth competition in the country.

The list of past honorees reads like the top roster of leaders in business, industry, the professions, the military, sports, government and the arts. Also, science, religion and space exploration.

A few of those inducted with Ted Balestreri include Brig. Gen. James Lee Dozier, hero of the 42-day ordeal in Italy when kidnapped by Red Brigade terrorists; Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Brooke Shields, "America's Million Dollar Baby"; Andrei D. Sakharov, Ph. D. famed nuclear physicist; Steven P. Jobs, Co-founder/Chairman of Apple Computers; Michael R. Harrison, M.D., for epic achievment in medicine; also, Wayne Gretsky, hockey star; Stephen Jay Gould, Ph.D., hailed as "Scientist of the Year"; Chung Ju Yung, a "rags to riches" dynamo, now one of the richest men in the world; and of course, Ted J. Balestreri, whoe meteoric rise was recently spotlighted on the cover of Money Magazine.

Balestreri, who started on the streets of Brooklyn and progressed to a Pebble Beach mansion, heads a business empire which controls five restaurants (including the famed Sardine Factory) and 70 percent of Cannery Row, now worth an estimated $100 million. He and his associates also own shopping centers, real estate, and other business ventures.

Balestreri's lovely wife, Velma, accompanied him to New Orleans, where they were royally wined and dined for four days. All major events took place at the Hilton Hotel and Towers.

Balestreri said modestly: "I would like to share this honor with my long-time friend and partner, Bert Cutino, my other associates, and all of our 350 employees, who have been so helpful to me in accomplishing the achievements recognized by this award."

BUD ALLEN, owner of La Playa, was in for a big surprise on his birthday June 30. Allen was attending a party for members of the Broncos, a La Playa sponsored baseball team, when a gorilla arrived. The gorilla whisked Allen away to another private birthday party, "somewhere in Carmel." (Photo by Pam Klaumann).

A CROWD OF more than 100 music and salmon lovers gathered for a Fourth of July salmon barbecue at Hidden Valley Music Seminars on Sunday afternoon. Musicians taking part in the Hidden Valley Masters Festival of Chamber Music mingled with the guests and Hidden Valley staff at the event which was staged between the Sunday afternoon and evening performances. The tables were set with red, white and blue tablecloths and napkins and tiny American flags--plus lots of cool watermelon.

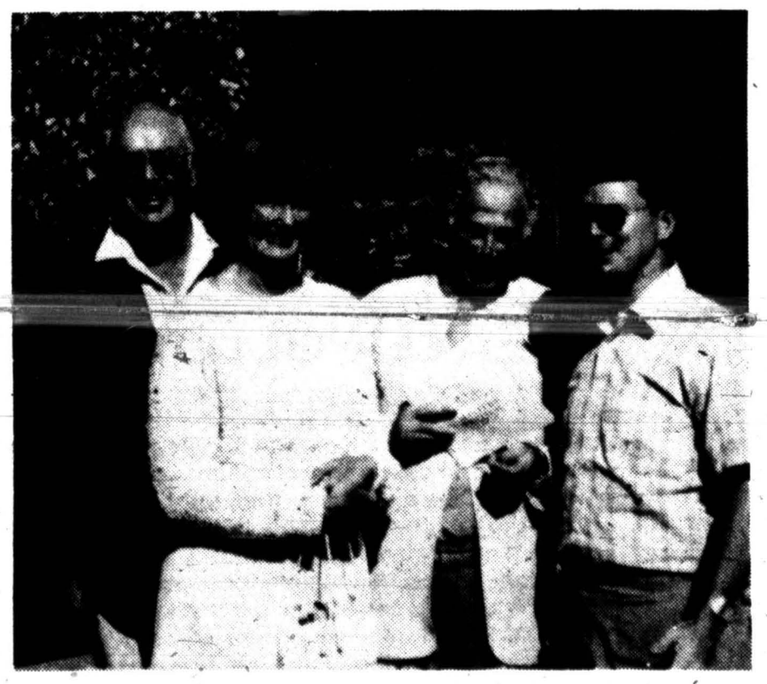

CELLIST LORNE MONROE and his wife Janee help themselves to the bountiful buffet in the patio at Hidden Valley. Monroe is principal cellist of the New York Philharmonic.

HIDDEN VALLEY's popular and able chef, Smitty (right) served up more than 100 salmon dinners Sunday afternoon. Harold Dicterow, principal of the second violin section of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra and his wife, Irena, are seen getting their serving of salmon. Dicterow and his son, Glenn, took part in the Masters Festival.

FLUTIST JULIUS BAKER (right), solo flutist of the New York Philharmonic, was joined by his wife, Ruth and Ray Fabrizio of Carmel and Ina Maye Holt of San Jose. Fabrizio who plays with the Monterey County Symphony, was one of the people responsible for bringing Baker to the area to give his flute master classes every summer. Baker told Festival-goers that he plans to retire from the Philharmonic next year to have more time to play recitals and make more recordings.

Dog and cat vaccination clinic offered July 10 in Carmel Valley

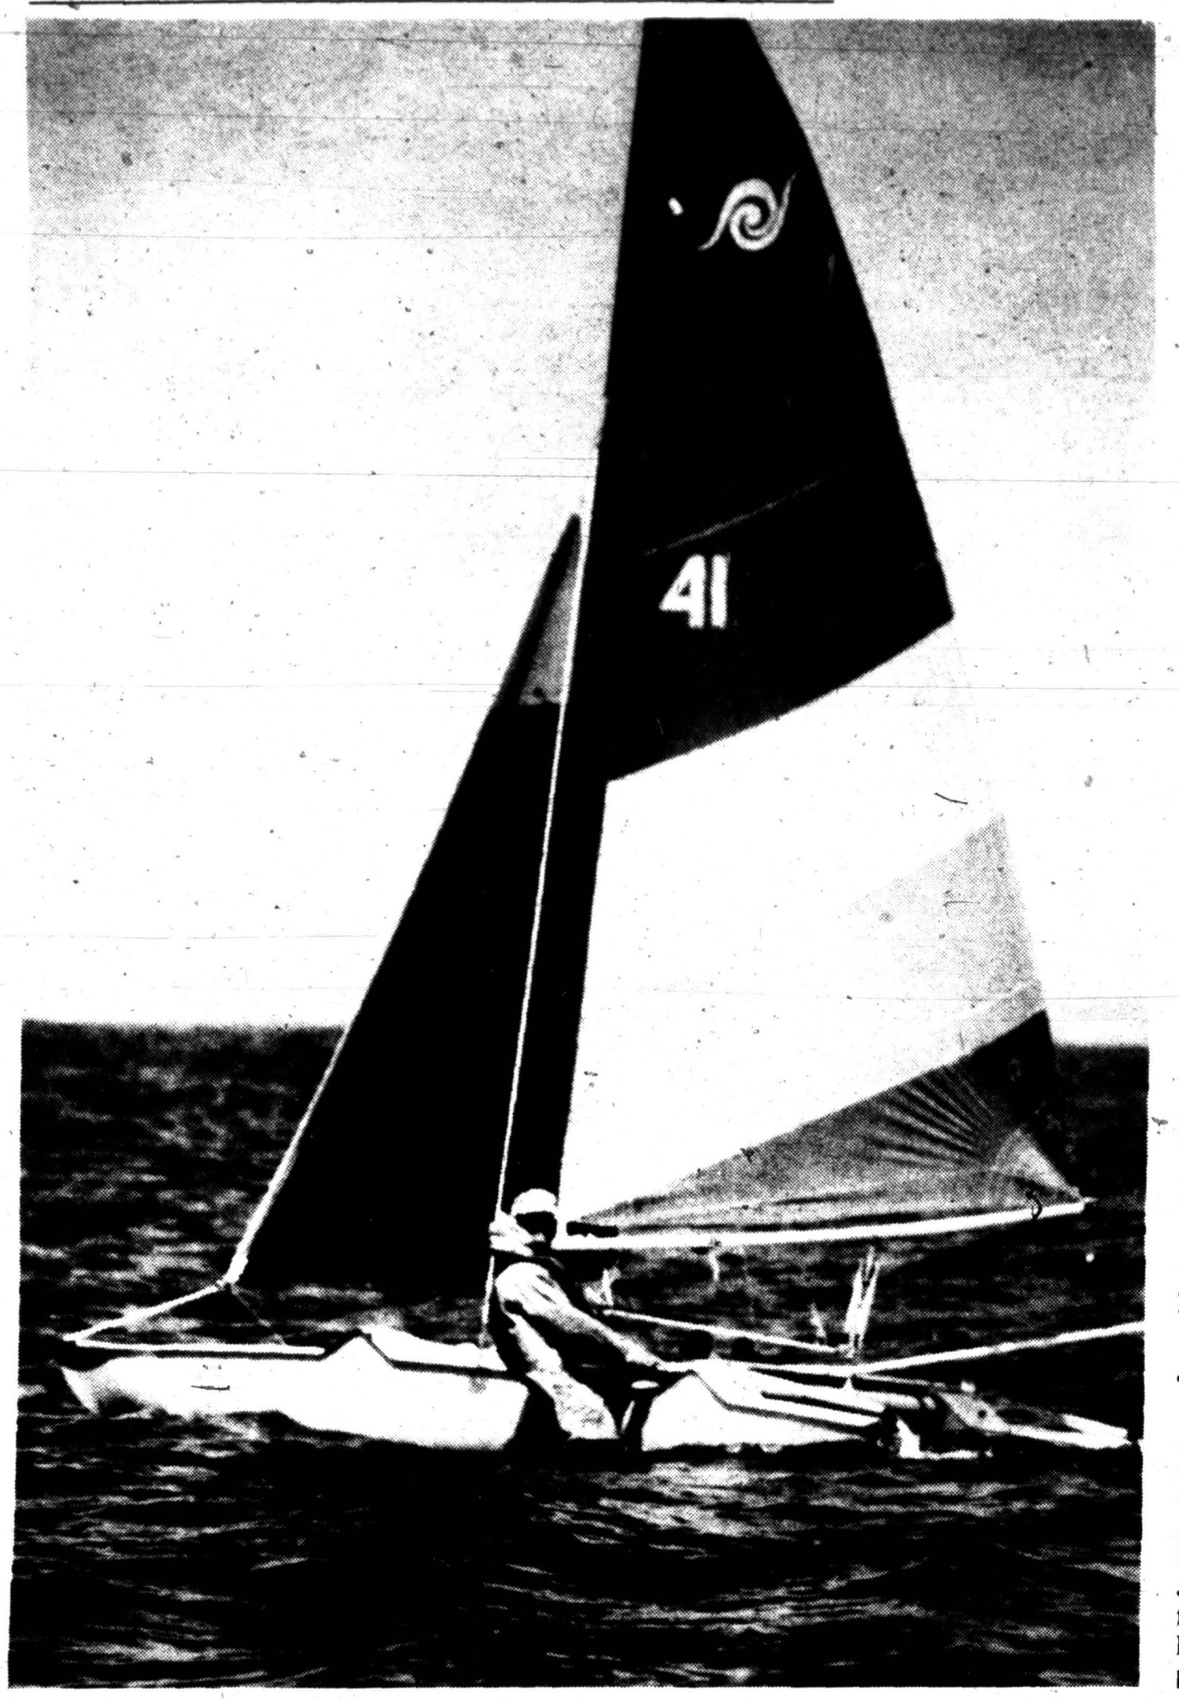

A dog and cat vaccination clinic will be offered from 10 a.m. until noon July 10 at the White Oak Shopping Center (across from Bank of America) in Carmel Valley Village.

Sponsored by Pet Prevent-A-Care of Santa Rosa, the clinic will also offer tests for heartworm disease and intestinal parasites.

Costs of the vaccinations are: rabies, $3.95; distemper, $4.25 and Parvo, $5. In addition, the clinic offers a "three in one" vaccination for cats for $5 and a "five in one" vaccination for dogs for $7.

Owners are asked to keep their dogs on leashes and cats in carrier boxes.

Terri Lee Robbe has been ill. Her coverage of Carmel area society events will resume upon her recovery.

RED SAILS will be seen in the Monterey sunset as more than 200 catamarans compete in the 4th annual Monterey Multihull Classic, which includes the Seaspray Class North American Championships. Two races will be held each day, beginning at noon Thursday, July 8 through Sunday, July 11. The colorful fleet can be seen each morning on Monterey Beach adjacent to Wharf 2 as the crews prepare their boats for the races.

Monterey Multihull Classic will get underway on July 8

Hull flying action and high speed thrills will abound as more than 200 catamarans from the United States and Canada compete in the fourth annual Monterey Multihull Classic beginning Thursday, July 8 and continuing through July 11.

Some 30 different classes of catamarans will be represented to make the Multihull Classic one of the largest yachting events of its type in the country.

In addition to regular racing, the Multihull Classic, organized by the Monterey Multihull Racing Association and sponsored by Cambridge Plan International, will include the Seaspray Class North American Championships.

Two races will be run each day, beginning at noon on a triangular course off Cannery Row. The colorful fleet can be seen each morning on Monterey Beach adjacent to Wharf 2 as the crews prepare their boats for the races.

Randy Smyth of California, winner of the 1981 Tornado Worlds, will be one of the many top skippers competing for the 80 hand-crafted trophies awarded to winning skippers and crews in each class at the end of the series.

One of the more interesting catamarans racing will be Wild Turkey, a solid wing 18 square meter class catamaran. The most outstanding feature of this classically beautiful boat is its wing design sail. Craig Riley of California, who won competitions last year, will be racing his revolutionary new design catamaran for the first time on the West Coast.

Many of the top skippers will sail in the One-Of-A-Kind race that will be held the first day of the regatta. Wild Turkey, along with some 20 different class cats will race for a special trophy for the One-Of-A-Kind.

The Multihull Classic has become recognized as the premier event in catamaran racing. Several manufacturers will be represented and many will be showing their latest models for the first time on the West Coast. With the number of different types of boats represented, the Classic is both a boat show and a regatta.

Racing format:

Thursday, July 8

Classic Invitational:

MHRA One-Of-A-Kind (one catamaran from each class.)

Open Racing (three divisions, Portsmouth ratings will apply.)

Friday, Saturday, Sunday, July 9-11

Classic Series:

Class and Open handicap racing. Six races, one throw out. Two races each day.

Includes:

- Seaspray North Americans
- Stilleto West Coast Championships
- Dart Class Points Regatta
- Freestyle California Championships

County drops toll-free line

When you want to "reach out and touch someone" at the Monterey County offices in Salinas, do not expect to dial toll free.

Because of budget reductions, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors has disconnected the "800" toll free number for the administrative offices.

County Administrator Richard Andrews said the toll free number became "too expensive" at $33,000 per year. "We had to cut $16.8 million from the budget. That line was not a high priority."

Andrews said administrators will accept collect calls for official business.

What to do with pets when you leave home

By JUDITH A. EISNER

VACATIONS AREN'T always long trips. Frequently, during the summer months, people decide to take a day or two-day outing to some fairly close-by-spot. Because they are only going to be away from home for a short while, they assume that they can leave their pets to fend for themselves.

"The cats can manage for a day," someone said recently, and left on a Monday morning for a short hop to Fresno. When she hadn't returned by Wednesday mid-day, we began to worry about those cats and drove down to check them out, bringing along some cat food — just in case.

The cats emerged from somewhere around the house and practically leapt all over us as we dished out a hefty plateful of food. If you're familiar with the way cats eat, you'll understand how hungry these two were when we say they "ate like dogs."

People fall into the trap of believing their pets can take care of themselves because the animals appear to be sensible and self-reliant. These two cats are adept at gopher and lizard hunting, frequently bringing their "trophies" home to be admired.

But to think that a hunting cat is hunting because of hunger is a mistake. Ninety-nine percent of our pet cats hunt for the thrill of it. It wouldn't occur to them to actually eat that grisly thing. Dinner is something dished out in a clean dish, accompanied by a nice drink of cool water.

(This reminds us that many people who keep cats as "mousers" or "ratters" often mistakenly half-starve the animal in the belief that a hungry cat hunts more proficiently. Absolutely untrue. The stronger, healthier and better-fed the cat, the better hunter he will be. Besides, you don't really want your cat eating gophers and birds and mice, do you? All sorts of undesirable parasites and illneses can be caught by eating these creatures.)

PET DOGS, especially, are almost totally at the mercy of their owners to provide food. We have domesticated our dogs so utterly that many of them have lost whatever wolf-inherited hunting instinct they ever had. In addition, we train them to leave other animals alone — cattle, chickens, pet rabbits — even cats are taboo. You certainly can't expect a dog to rustle up his own dinner.

It is generally true that missing a day's food will not harm a healthy dog or cat. Even missing several days' rations won't inflict any serious harm. But being deprived of clean water for only a day, even when the weather is moderate, can be dangerous. On a very hot day, keeping a dog or cat from fresh water constitutes cruelty.

Whether or not an animal will "miss" its food if deprived for a day is a moot point. But remember that domestic dogs have come to look upon feeding time as the high spot of the day. Eating has become almost an activity for dogs (as it is to so many people) and they become agitated and nervous at mealtime if that chow isn't forthcoming.

If you plan to be away for a day or two and feel the best thing is to leave your pets at home rather than board them or take them along, there are certain minimum things that should be provided for their comfort.

It is cruel to leave an adult housebroken dog confined indoors if it is accustomed to relieving itself outdoors. Grown dogs will go through agony to avoid soiling indoors and even more agony when nature finally forces them to obey her call. If you can't safely permit your dog access to both outdoors and indoors while you're away, ask a neighbor to let the dog out or walk it at least twice a day (morning and night). Mature bitches have been known to voluntarily withhold urine for 15 hours or longer to avoid wetting indoors — and this can have a deletrious physical effect on bladder and kidneys.

Both cats and dogs, indoor or out, must have access to a supply of clean water. Leaving a shallow, tip-able pan isn't enough. Provide a generous, stable container that will last until you return.

Dry cat food and dog kibble now make it practical for you to leave sufficient food while you're away. Even if your pet doesn't generally like to eat plain dry food, at least you know he won't suffer from hunger in your absence. If he gets hungry enough, he'll eat dry food.

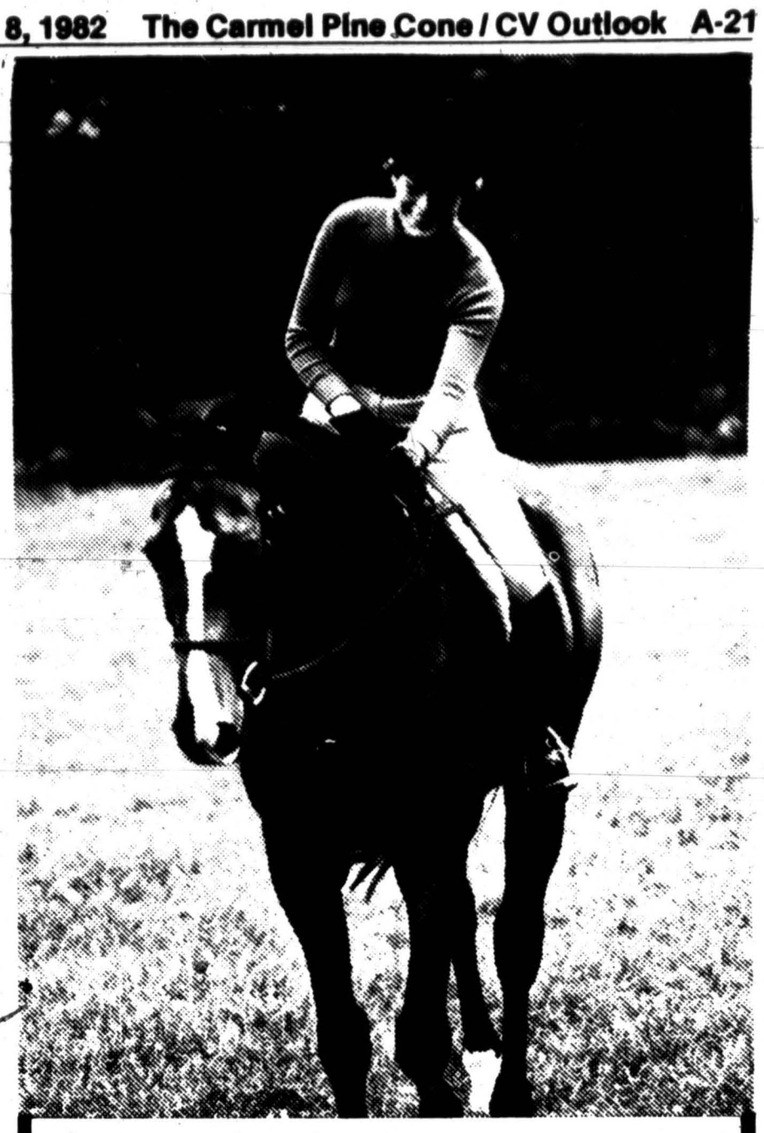

Canned foods will spoil quickly and attract flies and ants. They should not be left out for longer than it takes the animal to eat them — 15 or 20 minutes.

ANY PET LEFT outdoors for more than a few hours must have access to some form of shelter. In the summer, the vital element is shade. If you tie or chain a dog out where he cannot escape the sun and heat, you are courting disaster. Dogs overheat quickly in hot weather and are subject to heat prostration. If this occurs and there's no one at home to render first aid, the dog will convulse and die.

Safety is another factor when you leave your pet. It is irresponsible to simply pile into the car and take off, leaving a dog loose and on his own. He may try to follow you; he may wander off and be stolen or hit by a car or get into a dog fight.

It is only a little better to chain or tie a dog outdoors.

Unless you have an escape-proof fenced yard or kennel run for a dog with a dog house or other shelter, or a cool, secure garage or utility room in which to leave a cat, it's best not to go off and leave them. Under proper conditions, with food, water, protection and shelter, a dog or cat can do very well without you for a day or two. But don't take a chance that you might return to find tragedy has struck.

IN HARMONY ...

That's what riding is all about ... a calm, confident rider on a relaxed, responsive horse.

WE'RE DIFFERENT ...

The goal of the Rancho Laureles Riding Program is to teach riders to attain this special feeling.

We tailor our riding lessons to the individual. Beginners gain confidence and control; advanced riders improve their form.

We don't believe in over-mounting timid riders by putting them on more horse than they can comfortably manage, or insisting that riders jump before they're ready.

We stress the basics of correct horsemanship to teach how to ride effectively, and we make learning to ride a rewarding, enjoyable experience.

WHO CAN LEARN?

Anyone! One of the wonderful things about riding is you're never too old to learn. Horses are not just for teenage girls. They're for everyone! If learning to ride has been a dream of yours, we can make it a reality!

EXPENSIVE?

Riding lessons actually cost less than tennis, golf or skiing lessons. And you don't need any special equipment to get started. We supply horses and tack. (We're told that our school horses are a delight to ride and the best anywhere. That's an important asset in any riding program.)

BOARDING, TOO

Rancho Laureles continues to offer the finest boarding and riding facilities, including deluxe box stalls, paddocks and pasturage, plus safe sand arenas and direct access to 2,500 acres of glorious trails in Garland Ranch Regional Park.

Obon Festival July 10-11 at county fairgrounds

The Monterey Peninsula Buddhist Temple Obon Festival will be held Saturday and Sunday, July 10-11 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

The word obon signifies deliverance from suffering and is a Buddhist religious festival. The legend of obon comes from a Buddhist tale called the Ullavana sutra. The legend tells of a Buddhist monk, Mogallana, who was the Buddha's closest disciple. Mogallana's mother during her earthly life was a selfish woman; when she died she went to the hell of starvation.

Her son, being a highly-evolved soul, was able to see into the beyond and seeing his mother in great pain, hastened to the Buddha who advised him to invite the villagers and monks to a feast of atonement for his mother. As a result of this good deed, Mogallana's mother was raised from the hell of starvation into a more tolerable sphere. Upon seeing this, Mogallana danced for joy, in company with his fellow disciples. Thus began the festival of obon and the dances that are an important part of it.

About 200 kimono clad dancers will participate in the obon dances, 100 of them from the Peninsula, the others from Japanese-American communities in Salinas and Watsonville.

The schedule of evens includes a bonsai demonstration, koto music and Japanese classical dance, a judo demonstration, flower arrangement demonstration of the Ikenobo and Ohara schools and the traditional obon dance.

Japanese food including tempura, sushi, sashimi, and teriyaki will be offered as well as hamburgers for the not-so-adventurous. Japanese beer and sake will also be for sale.

About 150 bonsai trees will be on display; some are more than 150 years old and as small as three inches. Arts and crafts as well as antiques will be displayed; some will be for sale.

Hours for the Obon Festival are noon-9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is by donation at the gate. The Monterey County Fairgrounds are located at Fairgrounds and Garden Roads, Monterey. For further information, phone 624-5700.

General plan committee to discuss future annexation policies for Carmel

Future Carmel policies on annexation of adjacent unincorporated areas will be discussed when the General Plan Advisory Committee meets at 7:30 p.m. July 8 at city hall.

Earth Metrics, consultant to the city for the revision of the 1973 general plan, has recommended that the city may want to adopt an "urban services area" that would include "areas that may be annexable within the next five years to 1987."

In its draft land use element Earth Metrics said the urban services "represents a reasonable extent to which the resources and services of Carmel could be committed without undue community expense, as most of these areas are currently served by special service districts that provide essential urban services."

The proposed boundary for the urban services area is: the ocean to the west, one half mile north of First Street to the north (includes Carmel Woods); Highway 1 to the east and Rio Road to the south. The boundary extends south to include the Carmel Point and Missio Fields areas.

An area that may be affected immediately by proposed annexation policies is Carmel Woods, located at the northern tip of the city near Pebble Beach.

Carmel Woods is a 170-acre residential area with a population of about 1,800.

Some Carmel Woods residents have applied for annexation to the city. The Carmel City Council has scheduled a July 26 protest hearing.

If fewer than 25 percent of the registered voters in Carmel Woods protests, annexation automatically passes. If between 25 and 50 percent protest, the city council must schedule an election. If more than 50 percent protest, annexation would fail.

One important issue to Carmel Woods residents is whether the city will keep current county zoning for the area.

Earth Metrics, in the draft element, said the city should consider a general plan that allows annexed areas to keep present residential lot sizes.

The General Plan Advisory Committee is also expected to discuss a series of general policy statements on probable zoning for Carmel Woods, which were adopted by the city council June 15. These general policy statements would:

- Prohibit transient occupancy used within the R-1 residential district.
- Prohibit timesharing uses, although the one already approved by the county on Guadalupe Street would probably have to amortized out of existence.
- Retain Existing R-1 residential zoning and require "special treatment" for the R-2 zones.
- Tighten controls over second units on residential properties by requiring use permits for the installation of additional plumbing fixtures in secondary buildings located on one building site.
- Extend interaccessibility requirements or newly-created structures now in effect in Carmel. Those requirements may be changed, Peterson noted, when "second kitchen" regulations are developed for the entire city.
- Require review of fence height limits in Carmel Woods and possible reduction to conform with the four-foot limit in Carmel.
- Require design study of all structures in Carmel Woods which exceed 18 feet — the Carmel height limit — or two stories.
- Compel "considerable study by the planning commission" of differences between city and county regulations on building setback and lot coverage limitations.
- Require examination of zoning for the Carmel Woods site, which has been closed by the Carmel Unified School District because of declining enrollment.

The General Plan Advisory Committee is charged with reviewing the 1973 general plan and will make recommendations on revisions to the planning commission. The revised general plan will then be considered for possible adoption by the city council.

Stephen Tosh, Music Director of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel, will direct a Festival of Music for the 11 o'clock service Sunday, July 11. Dedicated to the spirit of the Psalms of Praise, with the theme Let Everything That Hath Breath Praise The Lord, the all-music service is in celebration of the upcoming Bach Festival and includes an unusual musical sermon.

In addition to selections from Bach's Flute Sonata For Concertina and Organ, the service will include a song by the Nursery School childen, music by Franck, Miller, Milner, Young and some original music written especially for the service by Mr. Tosh.

Following the service, everyone is invited to meet Tosh at an old-fashioned Strawberry Festival in Fellowship Hall. Mrs. Steven Johnson and Mrs. James Zuber are in charge of the Strawberry Festival. The chapel is on the corner of Paso Hondo and Village Drive in Carmel Valley.

STATE FLOWER IS 'SLEEPY'

The Spanish name for the California poppy, the state flower, is dormidera, "the drowsy one," because the petals fold in "sleep" at evening.

Deaths

Suzanne Vial Hilliard

Suzanne Vial Hilliard, a former resident of Carmel, died June 30 at her home in Ajijic, Jalisco, Mexico, after a brief illness. She was 32.

Mrs. Hilliard was born May 13, 1950 in Carmel. She was the daughter of Mrs. Jane H. Vial of Carmel and the late Herbert H. Vial and the granddaughter of Carmel author James Hopper and Mattie Leonard Hopper and the late Paul J. and Florence Vial of Oregon.

She was a graduate of Carmel and Monterey Schools.

Survivors include her mother, daughter Coreen Silverie of Prunedale and sister Loree Vial Mulrooney of Soquel.

The family prefers memorial contributions to Children's Education Project, Apartado 73, Ajijic, Jalisco, Mexico.

Carl A. Naslund

Carl A. Naslund of Carmel Valley died July 3 at Community Hospital after a brief illness. He was 73.

Mr. Naslund was born Oct. ", 1908 in Marinette, Wis.

He moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1947 and to Carmel Valley in 1951. He had been employed at Carmel High School for 14½ years in the custodial services department and later worked as a self-employed painter until his death.

He was an active member of Carmel Valley Community Chapel.

Survivors include his wife, Florence of Carmel Valley; stepsons, Don French Jensen of Carmel Valley and Herbert Hans Jensen of Clovis; sisters, Bernice La Comb of Stephenson, Mich., and Margaret Sprague of Pacific Grove, and Alice Lauridsen and Ruth Barrett, both of Monterey, as well as three step-grandchildren.

The California Cremation Society was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the Carmel Valley Community Chapel.

Matthew C. Jenkins

Matthew Comstock Jenkins of Pebble Beach died July 3 at his home after a lengthy illness. He was 84.

Mr. Jenkins was born on June 9, 1898 in New York City. He graduated from Williams College in 1920 and served in the U.S. Navy during World War I, moving to California thereafter. He had his own ranching interests in the San Joaquin Valley, raising peaches, almonds and grapes.

He was a longtime Pebble Beach yachtsman and was one of the founders and the first commodore of the Stillwater Yacht Club. The Matthew Jenkins Regatta is named in his honor.

His other community interests included the Carmel Red Cross, which he served both as chairman and a director. He was a member of the Old Capital Club in Monterey and the Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach.

Survivors include his wife Camilla Brown Jenkins; sons, Peter Jenkins of Washougal, Wash., and George Canfield of Cambridge, Mass.; daughters, Mrs. Paul Sullivan (Camila Canfield) of Danville and Mrs. Elmer Grossman (Pamela Canfield) of Berkeley, and 11 grandchildren.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, Box HH, Carmel.

Austin Rogers Frey

Austin Rogers Frey of Pebble Beach died at his home June 28 after a brief illness. He was 85.

Mr. Frey was born April 1, 1897, in Newark, N.J. He was a veteran of World War I, and studied at the Massachussetts Institute of Technology. He received his bachelor of science, masters of science and PH.D. degrees from Harvard University between 1920 and 1929.

He joined the Naval Postgraduate School facility in 1946 when the campus was based in Annapolis, Md., and moved west when it relocated to Monterey. From 1947-53 he served as chairman of the physics and electronics department and from 1953-64 he was chairman of the physics department.

In 1955-56 he took a leave of absence to serve as the first dean of the Navy's Nuclear Power School at New London, Conn., under Adm. Hyman Rickover.

Mr. Frey retired from the NPS in 1967 as a distinguished professor emeritus.

He was a member of the American Physical Society, the Institute of Radio Engineers (now the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers), American Acoustical Society, American Society of Engineering Education, American Association of University Professors and Sigma Xi, the national scientific honorary fraternity. Mr. Frey was co-author of "Fundamentals of Acoustics," a basic text in the field.

Survivors include a daughter, Kathryn Ann Thomas of Ramona; two sons, Theodore D. of Lafayette and Donald A. of Bodrum, Turkey; 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Carmel Rotary May 26, 1982

There should be 100 statues in the Statuary Hall in the Capitol, Washington, D.C. — two from each state in the union. But at the last count there were only 91.

We can rejoice in the fact that California picked our Padre Junipero Serra, who chose to live and die and be buried just a mile south of here at his favorite Mission San Carlos del Rio Carmelo.

Saint Paul admonished missionaries to be like himself — "all things to all men." With Padre Serra, there are other missionaries enthroned in honor in our Hall of Fame.

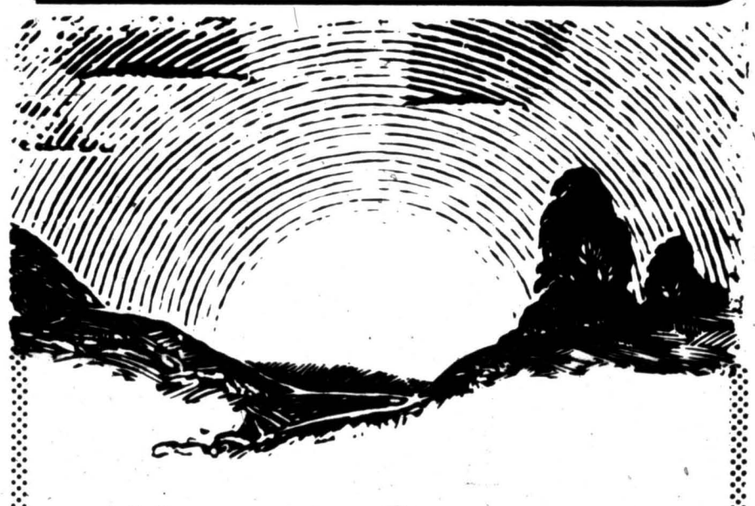

One hundred seven years ago in 1875, Pere Jacques Marquette explored the Father Waters, the Mississippi. He represents the State of Wisconsin and has the dubious honor of having a railway, a city, a county and a diocese named after himself.

In 1965, Arizona chose Padre Eusebio Kino and Hawaii picked the leper Father Damien of Molakai in 1969. Just one year ago, the state of Washington chose the first nun and the fifth woman — Mother Joseph — who from 1856 until 1902, was a one-woman Department of Health, Education and Welfare, who founded schools, hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged and Indian schools throughout the entire Northwest.

Statues are not made for the dead but rather for us, the living, so that we may look upon them and be inspired by their lives, and be motivated to become more like them in serving others.

These five have disproven the cynical observance of the former British Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin who said in Parliament before World War II:

"The Halls of Fame are open wide
And they are always full.
Some go in by the door called push
And some by the door called pull.

SPRING PICNIC is one of 20 new paintings by Diane Wolcott on display at the Bill W. Dodge Gallery, Court of the Fountains, Mission and Seventh, Carmel.

Wolcott paintings at Dodge Gallery

The first major exhibit of 20 new paintings by Carmel artist Diane Wolcott will open Friday, July 9 at Bill W. Dodge Gallery, Court of the Fountains, Carmel. The nationally-known artist has won critical acclaim for her miniature landscapes with figures of children, nuns and domestic animals; critics have said they "incisively project a picture of childhood innocence that is ideal and universal."

Diane Wolcott has been painting since childhood. She sold her first designs to an interior designer who was unaware that the finished drawings were the work of a 14-year-old girl.

She studied drawing, design and dynamic symmetry at the Kansas City Art Institute and later traveled extensively in Europe to observe the works of the great masters and rising young artists.

Upon her return home she began painting professionally in a style uniquely her own. A prolific painter, Wolcott has completed and sold more than 2,000 works during her 20 year career. A partial list of her collectors includes Greer Garson, Jerry Lewis, Fred Astaire, Barbara Stanwyck, Lorne Greene, Debbie Reynolds and George F. Getty, II.

Miss Wolcott comes from a family who has made its make in the arts. Her mother, Barbara Clough of Carmel Valley, was a ballerina who danced in the ballet companies of Anna Pavlova and Michel Fokine. Her grandmother was Jane B. Clough, a prize-winning student of the distinguished Danish-American sculptor, Solon Borglum.

The Bill W. Dodge Gallery is the only local gallery specializing in important American and European naive, primitive and folk art. Hours are 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. daily. The Court of the Fountains is on Mission between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. For further information, phone 625-5636.

Monterey Horse Show expands to eight-day format at Fairgrounds

Horses and riders from around the nation and the world will compete in the expanded 1982 Monterey County National Horse Show.

The show will be held July 25 to Aug. 1 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

An eighth day has been added this year, as has an expanded Grand Prix jumping event, which will be held on Sunday, Aug. 1

Grand Prix jumping is gaining in momentum and popularity as riders fight for points leading up to the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

"Quality entrants from all over, especially hunters and jumpers, will highlight this year's show," according to Larry Alcorn of Paso Robles horse show manager.

He said six jumpers from Holland and six to eight from the Japanese Olympic team will compete against those from California, Utah, Oregon, Washington and other states.

Alcorn, who is managing his first show in Monterey, is a veteran of 150 horse shows over the past decade. He said the Monterey show ranks "with the top horse shows." It has an "A" rating from both the American and Pacific Coast horse show associations.

Mrs. William P. Roth of Woodside, the "grand dame of horse shows," will attend her first horse show in Monterey in 20 years, where her string of horses will compete.

Performances will be at 1 and 7 p.m. all eight days of the show.

Admission is free to the 1 p.m. shows Monday, July 26, through Thursday, July 29. Ticket prices for other performances are: July 25, 30, 31 and Aug. 1, each show, $3 adult and $1.50 for children 12 and younger; July 26 to 29, 7 p.m. show, $2.50 adult, $1 child. Reserved seats are $4 each. Boxes (eight seats) are $150. for all performances.

For more information, write Monterey County Fair, P.O. Box 1151, Monterey, CA 93940, or phone (408) 372-5863.

Film of Bolshoi's 'Anna Karenina' due

BOLSHOI BALLET principals perform in the Peninsula premiere of the company's Anna Karenina, part of the Monterey Peninsula Film Society's Summer International Film Festival 1982 at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, July 14-15 at Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren, Monterey.

A Peninsula premiere from Russia of The Bolshoi Ballet Film of Anna Karenina, a Luis Bunuel film and the classic The Seven Samurai are offered by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society this week. The films are part of the Summer International Film Festival.

Akira Kurosawa's 1954 classic, The Seven Samurai, starring Toshiro Mifune, the Japanese Charlton Heston, follows the story of seven samurai warriors who help a farming community ward off attacks by maurading bandits. Pauline Kael lauds the film as "a raging sensuous work and the greatest battle epic since The Birth of a Nation of 1915. Glorious exaltation alive with action." Viewers may have seen the derivative American version by John Sturges entitled The Magnificent Seven.

The Seven Samurai will be screened at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 9-10.

Tristana, directed by the incomparable Luis Bunuel, starring Catherine Deneuve and Fernando Rey, concerns a young and innocent girl who is forced at her mother's death to move into the house of her aging and corrupt guardian. His seduction of her leads to her own descent into hedonism and perversity and the desire to wreak total vengeance upon her guardian. "The quintessential Bunuel film of all time," says Vincent Canby.

Tristana will be screened at 8:15 Tuesday, July 13 only.

Starring Alexander Godunov and Maya Plisetskaya and based on Leo Tolstoy's famous novel, Anna Karenina is a completely cinematic rendering of the Bolshoi's acclaimed production, which has never before been seen in the United States. The New Yorker called Anna Karenina "an extraordinary remarkable work, beautiful and penetrating."

Anna Karenina will be screened at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, July 14-15.

All three films will be shown in the Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $3.50 general and $2.50 for students, seniors, militay personnel and members of the film society. For more information, phone 659-4795.

Free voice, guitar and flute concert

The Sunday afternoon Forest Theater series will present Terrence Farrell and Friends, Sunday, July 11 at 2 p.m. in the outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Admission is free.

New to the performances at the Forest Theater, Terrence Farrell and his friends Linda Purdy and Ray Fabrizio, will present an afternoon of music for voice, flute and classical guitar.

Purdy is a frequent soloist with the Carmel Bach Festival, tours nationally with the Mother Lode Opera Troupe and was a finalist in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions. Fabrizio is the principal flautist with the Monterey County Symphony, the Bear Valley and Sun River music festivals and was co-founder with Julius Baker in starting master classes at the Hidden Valley Music Seminars. Later in the month Farrell will return to Europe to tour and to direct the 14th International Classic Guitar Seminars of Bavaria.

Music performed will include works by J.S. Bach, Faure, Castle-Nuovo Tedesco and Villa Lobos. Also included will be some seldom heard music from the California Gold Rush era.

Music Corner

Spontaneity and visceral excitement at Hidden Valley

By LYN BRONSON

SOME YEARS ago when we lived in New York City, my wife and I went to a Russian cafe on East 14th Street called "Two Guitars" to hear Sasha Polinoff and his Russian balalaika orchestra.

Having just finished a 12-month course in Russian at the Defense Language Institute in Monterey, I enjoyed having an opportunity to speak Russian with the musicians and to request some of my favorite Russian gypsy songs.

Polinoff and his musicians were delighted and treated us to one inspired rendition after another. A little later the lights dimmed and we observed the regular floor show which was a standard feature six nights a week. It was, unfortunately, a collection of cliches — one sword dance, a pair of acrobatic dancers, the obligatory song Dark Eyes and as their finale the most often played of all Russian gypsy songs, Two Guitars.

The floor show was technically perfect but incredibly boring. It was obvious that they had been doing it so long that any spontaneity which might have been present at one time had long since evaporated.

Immediately afterwards the lights came up and the musicians once again started to enjoy themselves.

This is a very common problem with performers who are locked into the same repertoire for long periods of time. A year ago, my wife and I were at the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition and heard the Tokyo String Quartet play 12 piano quintets in five days with the 12 semi-finalists.

We heard the most extraordinary variety of performances and some of the most vital and absorbing ensemble playing I had ever heard. Several months later we heard the Tokyo Quartet in Carmel and we had a chance to hear them under completely different circumstances.

On this occasion they were "on tour," sometimes playing the same program as many as four times a week. It was possible to imagine a member of the Quartet waking up in the morning and asking himself: "Where am I? Let's see. Yesterday was Santa Barbara, this must be Carmel. Tomorrow will be San Francisco, and the next day will be ..."

What we heardin performance was technically awesome. All the details of each performance were so refined that it was difficult to imagine more polished performances. But, in the process some of the visceral excitement observed in Fort Worth had been refined out.

Well, what has been going on at Hidden Valley's Master Festival of Chamber Music this past week can be described in two words — spontaniety and visceral excitement.

Peter Meckel has brought together a galaxy of instrumental stars, most of whom are first desk members of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra who have achieved important recognition as soloists and ensemble players.

Three of the principals — flutist Julius Baker, violinist Glenn Dicterow and cellist Lorne Munroe — have master classes and solo recitals at Hidden Valley in addition to their participation in this chamber music festival. Thus the chamber music activity at Hidden Valley extends far beyond the tip of the iceberg which has been highly visible this week.

What seems to have happened is that a very favorable environment has developed at Hidden Valley where all the circumstances conspire to make possible the most relaxed music-making conditions I have ever observed.

To begin with, the musicians know each other well. Eight of the 12 are principals in the New York Philharmonic. Two others are family members, violinist Harold Dicterow and violist Janee Munroe. The remaining two are pianists Lisa Emenheiser, who regularly plays with Mr. Baker, and finally Jonathan Feldman, a pianist who is making his first appearance on the Monterey Peninsula.

Second, the physical setup at Hidden Valley, where the audience sits on risers surrounding the performers on three sides, results in intimacy, unobstructed vision and superb acoustics.

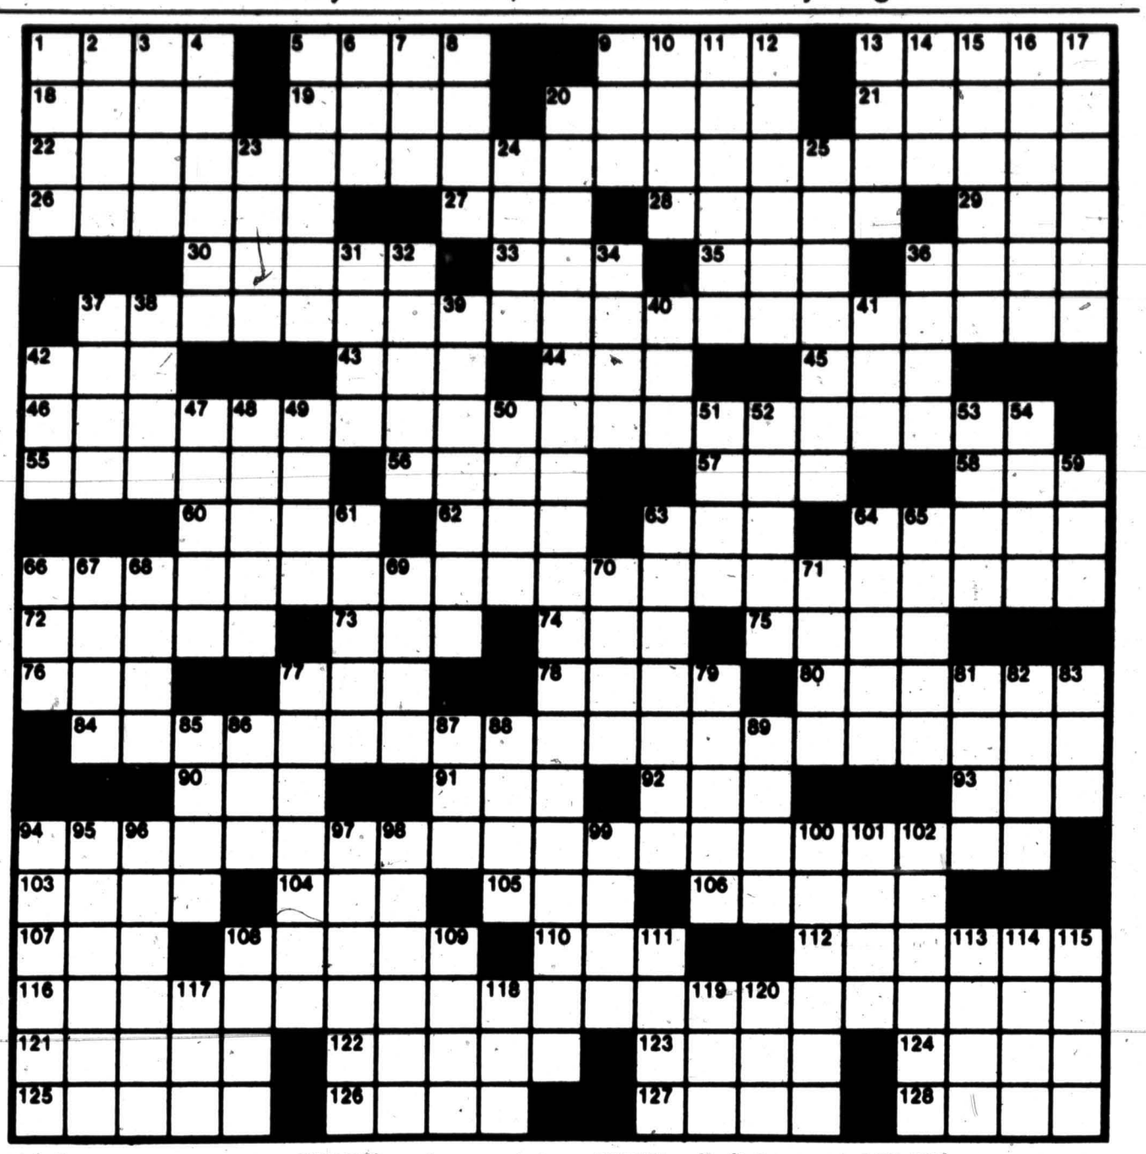

Third, the audience is young and enthusiastic. All too often in concert halls there is an invisible barrier between the Film review:

'Poltergeist' penetrates to heart of American Dream

By ANNE TELFORD

With Poltergeist, Steven Spielberg once again penetrates to the heart of the American dream. Using suburbia as the setting for journeys into the realm of fancy and parapsychology, that which is most innocent and sacred is revealed to contain unexplored horrors.

Tobe Hooper, here directing a big budget film, was previously known for his low budget thriller, Texas Chainsaw Massacre. A graduate of the University of Texas radio, television and film department, Hooper terrified theatergoers with his chainsaw wielding, masked psycho killer. With Poltergeist, his touch is less evident, however, than co-screenwriter and co-producer Spielberg's.

In a neighborhood where you can't tell the houses apart, it's only fitting that "ghosts" would come out of the television set to haunt the Freeling family. Zelda Rubinstein as the "house cleaning" tiny psychic named Tangina, infuses the film with life. She is quite believable in what could have been just another campy psychic role.

Spielberg likes to use children as innocent victims. In Poltergeist the five-year-old daughter becomes an unwitting medium for restless spirits; previously, he used children in Close Encounters of the Third Kind, Jaws and E.T.. His child actors are usually unknowns, which helps their effectiveness; they become modern day "everyman" figures through which the story unfolds. They are able to give a naive, yet honest interpretation of the action, without all the psychological claptrap adults carry around. In fact, one gets the impression that Spielberg communicates better through the children than the adult actors.

With his unprecedented summer double-header, Spielberg has presented two sides of suburban America the dark side in Poltergeist, and the ligter side in E.T..

The Freeling family experiences the horrors of sub-division living in a newly frightening way. To reveal the denounement would be unforgiveable. Horror films, which Poltergeist essentially is, derive their thrills from the tension they generate. To know the ending or the development of the most "frightening" scenes removes the immediacy of the cinematic experience. To fully enjoy a film like this one needs to immerse oneself in the plot and willingly suspend disbelief which becomes difficult when you read reviews that tell you step by step what happens.

Poltergeist contains the by now requisite grotesque scenes, the old Hitchcock up-the-stairs subjective shot, the false suprise scene and the wierdly unanticipated. Spielberg weds state of the art modern film technology to the conventions of classic B-grade horror films and comes up with another winner.

What's playing at the movies

Annie: A musical inspired by one of America's favorite comic strips since it began in 1924, Little Orphan Annie. The film which has drama, humor, thrills and music, is about the trials and tribulations of Annie and her dog Sandy. Other familiar characters are Daddy Warbucks, Punjab and Rooster. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Author! Author!: A sensitive and warm-hearted comedy about a New York playwright, Ivan Travalian, played by Al Pacino, whose new play is about to open on Broadway and whose wife suddenly leaves him — leaving him to care for their five children, four of whom are hers from three previous marriages. Tuesday Weld stars as the soon-to-be ex-Mrs. Travalian and Dyan Cannon as the Hollywood actress who stars in Travalian's play and hopes to assume the lead in his love life. At the Village Theater.

Blade Runner: Starring Harrison Ford. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Diner: The film is set in Baltimore in 1959, and a mixed group of Jewish and Catholic buddies in their early twenties stay up Friday nights comparing notes on girls, lapping up French fries at their favorite diner, and tearing around town. Starring an outstanding group of young actors: Kevin Bacon, Mickey Rourke, Steve Guttenberg, Timothy Daly, Paul Reiser and Daniel Stern. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial million-dollar creature from outer space who has a magical life of its own. A Steven Spielberg fantasy. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Firefox: Produced and directed by and starring Clint Eastwood. Eastwood plays an American fighter pilot chosen to steal a sophisticated Russian jet, the most devastating killing machine ever built. At the Golden Bough.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theatre.

Star Trek II — The Wrath of Khan. More exciting adventures and special effects with the same Star Trek crew, William Shatner and Leonard Nimoy, to provide the thrills. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

The Secret Policeman's Other Ball: An imperfect but often stunning live performance film of Monty Python high-lights from two benefit performances in London. John Cleese, Graham Chapman, Michael Palin and Terry Jones find that rare area between pure absurdity and the pure essence of things. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

The Thing: John Carpenter who gave us Halloween I and Halloween II now gives us The Thing, a science fiction thriller starring Kurt Russell. Rated R. At the Regency.

Tron: A super Walt Disney production. Like Alice Through the Looking Glass, this film is about a young man who is caught inside a video computor. It captures the imagination and the effects are exciting. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

audience and the musicians on stage. At Hidden Valley the audience sees the musicians enter so nearby that they could reach out and touch them. And the performers not playing that evening sit in the audience and are accessible to the public.

In addition, we have some interestingprogrammingby Larry Newland, associate conductor of the New York Philharmonic. Mixed in with standard repertoire were some unusual items — the Poulenc Sextet, Piston's Three Pieces for Flute, Clarinet and Bassoon; Kodaly's Duo for Violin and Cello; Kuhlau's Quintet for Flute, Two Violas, Violin and Cello; and Janacek's Concertino for Piano, Two Violins, Viola, Clarinet, Horn and Bassoon.

Some of these works are less than master pieces and were undoubtedly chosen because of the particular instrumentation available at the festival. However, the freshness of the playing made it all worthwhile.

Some of the highlights of the Festival were performances which will remain a long time in my memory. To hear oboist Joseph Robinson in the Vivaldi Concerto for Oboe, Strings and Continuo, was simply the best oboe playing I have ever heard. Even in the fastest passages, the control of each individual note in respect to dynamic shaping, articulation and accents was astonishing. And the ornaments in the slow movement were masterful and natural.

The Dvorak Quintet with violinists Dicterow and his father, violist Leonard Davis, cellist Lorne Munroe and pianist Jonathan Feldman, was a hair raising performance. Bassoonist Judith LeClair was outstanding in the Sonata in D Minor for Bassoon by Corelli — it was a treat to hear her silky smooth, seamless playing. And in the last program, the Janacek Concertino received one of the finest performances of the entire festival.

Bravo to all the fine musicians who participated, and bravo to Peter Meckel, without whose perseyerence this event would not have happened. Meckel has indiciated that the Festival will be an annual event, but he hopes it will not become too big and commercial. For after all, the intimacy and the spontaneity are two of its most important assets.

Europeans know how to support the arts

By RICHARD TYLER

THE NETHERLANDS is celebrating a 403rd birthday of the world's oldest federal republic and constitutional monarchy when 16 provinces and cities were united under one government in 1579 with the creation of an upper and lower house of representatives. Two hundred years later this became the pattern for the United States Constitution.

It might not be a bad idea to follow the lead by Holland again — this time for a pattern of government art support. While only a very small minority of United States visual artists, 2 to 5 percent, can make a living from work, among the Dutch artists a majority make a normal subsistence with art largely because of this support. However, the present governmental attitude towards the arts in Holland does not date back 400 years, rather only 40 years, since World War II and it did not come about spontaneously.

Most West European countries have well established artist organizations; many of these grew out of the guilds and have elaborate gallery facilities often with coffee shops. Traditionally, most professional artists belong to them. They add to the artist's status because admission requirements are very strict. These organizations, when combined in a coalition for a common cause, represent a power with a prestigious weight.

And, in the post-World War II years when the political winds blew more and more in the direction of government subsidies, social security, national health insurance, and welfare it was logical that the arts, always highly respected in Europe, should become eligible for state support.

During the post-war years, Holland has become a leading patron of the arts through various federal, state (province), and municipal programs, some to stimulate exposure, sales, and self-help projects, others with subsidies, grants, and commissions for public buildings, schools, and special projects, also specific support plans for the young and elderly artists.

We promote the concept of government support for the arts in the United States on an equivalent basis with the many subsidized industries by recognizing that the arts are part of an "industry." As such, they should be highly respected in the United States where industry is the key to its fabulous development. Let's face it: all the arts are involved with industrial output, employment of thousands of workers who produce and distribute arts supplies, musical instruments, scores, books, magazines, reproductions, prints, ballet shoes and costumes.

And let's not forget that the arts have become one of the most successful commodity investments although we may resent the intrusion of greed into our esthetic domain.

Furthermore, there is the tremendous ancillary potential resulting from all art activities — employment of additional workers in tourism, ticket sales, theater engagements, museum attendance, gallery sales, transportation, parking, hotel and restaurant services.

A large percentage of a government arts budget would be collected again in extra taxes from the increase of these activities.

Similar benefits would come to the states on sales and income taxes and to municipalities on real estate, hotel, and tickets sales taxes. A recent survey of the arts in Philadelphia revealed that 100 out-of-town visitors per day to the city's cultural institutions provide $78,000 in taxes, $144,000 in bank deposits, $1.2 million in retail sales, and 111 new jobs.

A case in point was the proposal that Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles made in 1977 for a new ordinance to create a Cultural Affairs Department. It faced the typical opposition for cultural support proposals until the statistic got around that every dollar spent on the arts brings back from $12 to $28. The New York State Council on the Arts, the best state patron of art in the country, raised its budget in 10 years (between 1965 and 1976) from $500,000 to $34 million as a result of a campaign to educate legislators and officials about the economics of the arts industries and to show that funding cultural activities is a very lucrative investment. The $34 million funding bill was passed through the Assembly without a debate.

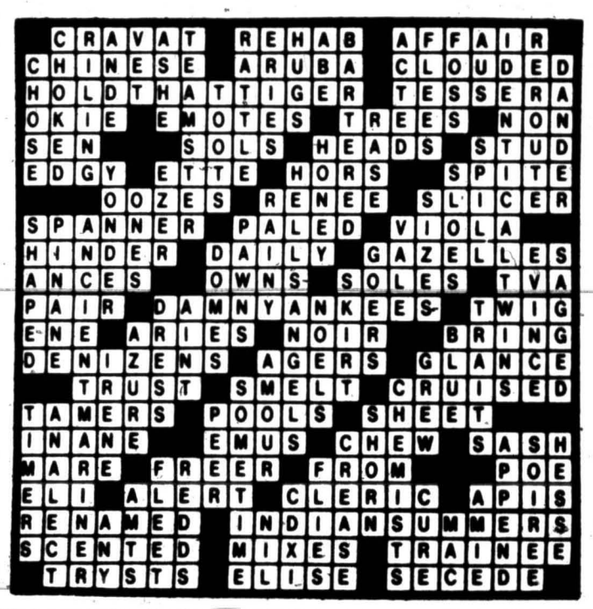

This is a language that carries more impact than the most brilliant rhetoric on the spiritual qualifications of the arts. We know that the creative arts are not an industry. They are, however, an inseparable part of an industrial complex and we must recognize this. If we can endorse the concept of an "arts industrial complex," we must realize that it is the industrial part that holds the winning argument and not the arts. However, it is the result that counts.

"So, in this society which is already so rich in things, the single legacy which we might best pass on to our posterity is a legacy of the spirit and mind, a flourishing of all the arts." (from an address to the Business Committee for the Arts by J. Irwin Miller, Chairman of the Board of Commings Engine Co., Inc.)

New to the Forest Theater Sunday Series but certainly not new to the Peninsula are three of the finest performing musicians in the area. Linda Purdy, Ray Fabrizio, and Terrence Farrell, comprising Terrence Farrell and Friends, will present an afternoon of music for voice, flute, and classical guitar at the Forest Theater in Carmel on Sunday, July 11. Music performed will include works by J.S. Bach, Castle-Nuovo Tedesco, Faure, and Villa-Lobos.

The program starts at 2 p.m. There is no admission charge. The Forest Theater is located at Mt. View and Santa Rita Avenues in Carmel.

Backgammon

No leap for lovers

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 6-5 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

Get your fingers away from the men on Black's 1-point. Normally, when you get 6-5 at your first roll, you take "lover's leap," moving one of the back men from your opponent's 1-point to your midpoint. But because Black has left a blot on your bar point, this is not a normal position.

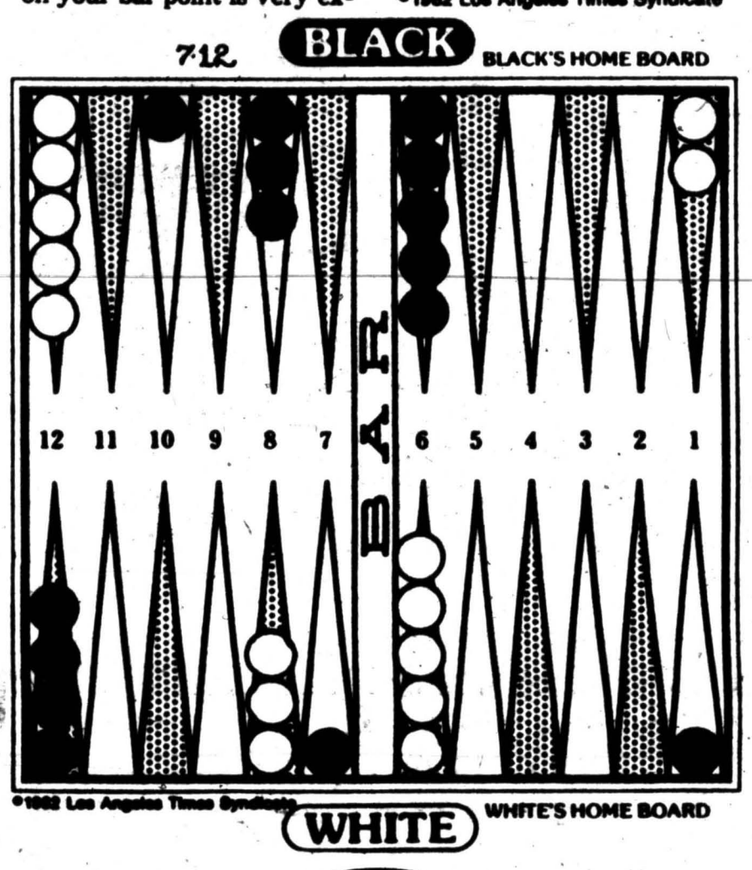

You should take the six by moving down from your midpoint to hit the blot on your bar point. You don't want that man to get away, and you likewise don't want Black to make your bar point if his next roll is a six.

Having hit the blot, your next step is to take a five. If you bring another man down from your midpoint, the blot on your bar point is very exposed. The only effective way to protect that blot is to leave another —by hitting the other black blot on your 1-point.

You're not full of joy at putting two on the bar, and you're certainly not happy at pushing one of your men over to your 1-point But you wouldn't mind it a bit if Black came in with a one, putting your man back in circulation. You want time to make your bar point with a six or a one.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

AMERICAN COIN SILVER, circa 1810, is one of the many displays of antiques at the annual Monterey Peninsula Antiques Show and Sale, sponsored by St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church, in Pacific Grove. Their Silver Anniversary show will be held July 9-11.

Antiques show, sale this weekend in Pacific Grove

The Silver Anniversary of the 25th annual Monterey Peninsula Antiques Show and Sale, sponsored by St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church, 12th and Central, Pacific Grove, will be held Friday through Sunday, July 9-11. Hours are 11 a.m.-7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and noon-5 p.m. Sunday.

Founded 25 years ago to help fund the charitable endeavors of the church Womens' Guild, the antique show has since become a project of the entire parish. Each year since its inception they have selected and invited a group of 28 specialized and diversified antique dealers whose exhibits run the gamut from Georgian silver to old christening gowns; pattern and art glass to fine Oriental artifacts; country/western furniture to examples of 18th century English cabinet-making; and heirloom jewelry to antique dolls and rare books.

This year three new exhibitors will feature a display of crystal, Victorian pressed glass, cut, pattern and art glass and porcelain figurines at the head of the stairs in Clay Hall.

Two pre-show lectures will be presented prior to the opening of the exhibits on Friday and Saturday, July 9-10 at 10:30 a.m. On Friday, William Simpson will lecture on English furniture and Saturday there will be an informal talk on silver. Patrons are invited to bring their own English antiques and silver for free information from the experts, but no appraisals will be given. Admission to both lectures and the 28 exhibits all three days of the show are included in the $2 donation.

The traditional "cooked by church members" luncheons and Sunday brunch will be served in the Garden Court from 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. Friday through Sunday. Priced at $3.75 including beverage and dessert, the menus feature a lasagne lunch on Friday, St. Mary's vegetarian casserole on Saturday and the men of the parish will prepare Crepes a la Reine for Sunday brunch. After 2:30 p.m. sandwiches, homemade desserts and beverages will be available.

The women who founded the Monterey Peninsula Antiques Show will receive recognition during the Silver Anniversary Sunday brunch. Antiques dealers Grace Elliott, John Keller and Lewis Scott will also be honored for their continuous participation in the show since 1957.

For more information, phone 373-4441.

Quilting book authors to sign at Thunderbird

Three Monterey Peninsula authors will autograph their new book, The I'd Rather Be Quilting Cookbook, Sunday, July 11 from 4-6 p.m. at the Thunderbird Bookshop in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Miriam Layton of Carmel Highlands, Patricia Walker of Carmel and Marion Williams of Pacific Grove are avid quilters, creative cooks and now, new authors. The I'd Rather Be Quilting Cookbook was written by this trio for people who have found that their avocation has become too time-consuming, leaving few free hours for more mundane tasks. The book contains more than 100 complete dinner menus, with recipes, all of which may be prepared within an hour or less.

Each menu is on a separate page, illustrated by a quilt block, with that menu named for that particular pattern. Each quilting block has text giving information on the history of that pattern. The book's goal is to allow quilters, and other busy people, to spend maximum time at their art, yet not neglect the needs of their families.

The autograph party is open to the public. Refreshments will be served. For futher information, phone 624-8842.

FIRST CHURCH WAS EPISCOPAL

Although Pacific Grove was founded as a methodist retreat, the first church building was for an Episcopalian congregation, St. Mary's-by-the-Sea. It had such a pleasing design that when the time came to enlarge it, rather than add onto it awkwardly the decision was made to cut it in half across the middle move the two halves apart and elongate the building.

State amateur golf championships at Pebble next week

The 71st annual California State Amateur Golf Championships will be held July 11-17 at the Pebble Beach golf links, Pebble Beach. The championships are usually held in June but due to the U.S. Open being held in Pebble Beach they have been put back a month this year.

Sectional qualifying was held June 7 both in northern and southern California with 307 entries playing for 100 spots each from the northern and southern districts.

The field of 200 will start Monday, July 12, with 54 holes of stroke play; 18 holes each, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They will tee off each day at 8 a.m. The low 32 will be paired into match play Thursday, July 15. The championship will be decided Saturday, July 17 with match play.

All events are free, and the public is invited to view the golfing action.

Dance Theater auditions Sat.

Monterey Peninsula Dance Theater will hold auditions for choreographers on Saturday, July 10 at 4 p.m. at the Monterey Dance Workshop, 559 Tyler Street, Monterey.

The auditions are open to dance or dance theater artists interested in participating in MPDT's Fall Concert '82, on Oct. 1-2 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. The theme of the concert is Myths and Legends.

Choreographers are asked to present an example of the style of dance they wish to contribute to the performance. Honorariums will be given.

For further information, phone 649-0698.

Jazz concert at Crossroads, then MPC

JEY CLARK, along with percussionist Alex Cline, will perform Symbols, Global Music, Songs and Improvisations in a free concert Friday, July 9 from 5-8 p.m. at Peyton's Place in the Crossroads Mall.

Monterey Peninsula resident Jey Clark and Los Angeles musician Alex Cline will present Symbols: Global Music, Songs and Improvisations Friday, July 9 from 5-8 p.m., a free musical concert, at Peyton's Place in The Crossroads Mall, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Saturday, July 10 they will perform in concert at 8 p.m. at the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall, Monterey. Admission is $4.

Primarily known for their work in the creative jazz field, Clark and Cline are musicians who explore a variety of musical directions. Drawing upon inspiration from many different sources, they create a rich musical language which uses traditional forms from all over the world as well as spontaneous improvisations.

For further information phone 1-425-5864.

Free films at Monterey library

Films featuring the city of Stockholm, Sweden, and the painter Winslow Homer will be shown at the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific Street, Monterey, today at 2 p.m. The films are free and open to the public.

Mai Zetterling, writer, director and actress narrates Stockholm and says of her native city, "Stockholm has the highest standard of living in Europe and the highest life expectancy in the world. It has the architecture of seven centuries and at least seventeen styles. Here, everything is organized, except sleep. It even provides commuter tickets for dogs on trains and buses."

Zetterling presents an image of the city not only through her eyes, but through the eyes of Queen Christina and August Strindberg, sharing a vision of Stockholm that is a provocative testament to the spirit of her city.

Yankee Painter traces the development of Winslow Homer who, as a Civil War journalistic illustrator, painted the everyday life of the soldier. Thirty eight drawings, oils and watercolors are shown. Homer also painted the epic struggle of man against the sea from Maine to Bermuda.

Brett Weston show to open

BRETT WESTON: New Work, an exhibition that will open Friday, July 9 at The Friends of Photography Gallery, Sunset Center, Carmel, celebrates Weston's continuing visual exploration with images made since the late 1970s. This show includes prints from New York, Hawaii, San Francisco and other sites that Weston has photographed recently and emphasizes work done in the last two years. The son of famed photographer, Edward Weston, he lives and works in Carmel Valley. Weston's work has been exhibited in major cities across the United States and in Europe.

Mike Douglas learned that lifesaving is just one reason to keep Red Cross ready.

"A surprising fact I learned: Just about every lifeguard you've ever seen has had Red Cross safety training. To date, Red Cross has issued over 65 million swimming and lifesaving certificates.

"In towns and cities across the nation, Red Cross performs scores of different services. In some places, Red Cross provides home health care for senior citizens. In many places they teach preparation for parenthood. Red Cross helps people relocate after fires. Teaches health, safety, first aid. Helps veterans. In fact, if it needs to be done, chances are Red Cross is doing it right now.

Keep Red Cross ready.

Ceramic sculpture to open Friday

The new movement in clay, beginning in the 1950s is updated in the National Clay Show: 20 Artists, an eclectic exhibition which will open Friday, July 9 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific Street, Monterey. The Museum is open 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 1-4 p.m. on weekends.

The National Clay Show offers diversity of form, image and technique in the work of 20 artists whose creations demonstrate their thrust away from the "form follows function" artistic philosophy. This change in thinking has pushed ceramic sculpture forward as a force in contemporary art.

The 20 ceramic artists were selected for the National Clay Show because their work is representative and highly respected. Many of them are teachers, many have been exhibited nationally and some internationally. They represent all the thrusts in the ceramic sculpture movement.

The 20 artists are: Bill Abright, Laura Andreson, Lloyd Baskerville, Carmel High School ceramics instructor; Barry Bates, Ann Corcoran, Phil Cornelius, Kris Cox, Richard Deutch, Sherry Haxton, Wayne Higby, Robert Kvenild, Terri Kvenild, James Lovera, David Middlebrook, Tony Marsh, Otto Natzler, Ken Price, Richard Shaw, Paul Soldner, Bob Sperry, Peter Voulkos, Patti Warashina and Stan Welsh.

WHETHER you're just learning to ride or refining your technique, our instruction program at Rancho Laureles emphasizes the special rapport that develops between horse and rider. We offer private and group riding lessons for hunt seat, dressage or just for fun.

A GOOD HORSE, good friends and open spaces are among the joys of riding. Rancho Laureles offers direct access to Garland Ranch Regional Park and 2,500 acres of divine equestrian trails (motorized vehicles prohibited!) to enjoy any day of the year!

SAFE, SPACIOUS, deluxe accommodations — and care to match — pamper horses boarded at Rancho Laureles. Our box stalls are large and airy, cleaned fastidiously, bedded generously. Our feedigg program creates sleek, healthy and contented horses who look and feel good! We also offer pipe paddocks and pasture boarding — all at competitive rates.

You owe your horse – and yourself – the good life at Rancho Laureles

We believe your horse deserves the very best care to keep him healthy and happy. At Rancho Laureles we offer safe and comfortable accommodations plus a high-quality feeding program to bring out the best in your horse.

Our deluxe box stalls are a full 12x12 and open onto a securely fenced 288-square-foot paddock. Most stalls have foot-cushioning rubber mats, automatic waterers and feeders. Best of all, they are meticulously cleaned and bedded daily.

A bonus to patrons is the roomy tack locker assigned with each stall and a separate place to store feed and grain. To pamper your horse even more, our wash rack has hot water!

WHERE WE RIDE

Two large, securely fenced arenas offer excellent, well-drained sand footing. Our jump ring measures 325x135 feet and is used for basic schooling as well. Our 150x275-foot upper arena includes a dressage court. There's also a round lungeing ring and a half-mile track around our fields for warming up a horse, cooling him out or legging him up.

A very special part of riding at Rancho Laureles is Garland Ranch Regional Park and 2,500 acres of equestrian trails. Our property directly adjoins the park.

THE FINEST CARE

We're proud to receive compliments from professional horsepeople about the condition of our horses. Our feeding program includes high-protein alfalfa cubes and the finest oat and alfalfa hay money can buy, fed generously to put weight and 'bloom' on even rundown, skinny horses and keep it there.
Regular farrier and veterinary care are part of the program at Rancho Laureles.

LESSONS, ANYONE?

Our instructor, Doug Downing, can take you from the basics of equitation through advanced jumping and dressage. He is available for private, semi-private or group lessons by appointment. Doug is also a kind, conscientious and qualified trainer who can start a horse gently or help smooth out any problems you may encounter.

GOOD COMPANY

One of the nicest things about Rancho Laureles is its relaxed, informal atmosphere. People tend to linger and visit and that makes us feel good because it means they like it here. After a ride, they'll sit around, enjoy a soft drink and chat — mostly about horses, of course.
But best of all, newcomers are made to feel genuinely welcome, whether they're nervous beginners or old pros. There's always a helping hand and a generous sprinkling of advice to help you feel you "belong" right from the start.

Why not see for yourself? Come out into the Carmel Valley sunshine to pay us a visit!

MUSIC SCHOOL TO OPEN

The old Carmel Hotel has undergone a transformation, and will be occupied this week by the Carmel School of Music, under the direction of Warren D. Allen, head of The Pacific Conservatory of Music in San Jose.

Two beautiful Steinway pianos have this week been placed on the platform of the attractive new recital hall, and shortly a series of recitals and concerts will begin, which will be a splendid stimulus to the growing musical life of Carmel.

Students will commence to arrive in a few days, and any who wish to interview Mr. Allen on Saturday, may do so at the studio between 2 and 4 o'clock.

POLICE ASKED TO PUT BAN ON CATS SERENADING AT MIDNIGHT

Even cats have to pay to live.

At least that's the status of an ordinance which has been on the city books for more than ten years, setting a license fee of 50 cents on all felines residing inside the limits.

The old ordinance which was passed by the council back in 1921 was dug up this week when several residents living in the northern section of the town complained to police of the nightly serenades.

They told Police Chief Gus Englund that a company of cats gathered at this particular section of Carmel each night with the express purpose of either rehearsing for a future Forest Theater performance or merely to keep neighbors from getting the required eight hours of slumber.

Chief Englund dug up the old ordinance to show the residents that the council realized their predicament and passed the ordinance shortly after similar complaints.

There are two obstacles to obtaining licenses for cats. One is that once the license has been attached to their collar, they invariably chew it or tear it off. The second obstruction in carrying out this law is the fact that the population of cats is about double that of humans — and it would take all the police department's time in catching stray cats.

The ordinance, which has never been enforced, makes it illegal for any resident to have a cat without a license. If they fail to have a license, they are subject to a fine of $50 or imprisonment in the county jail for thirty days.

And then, according to Cheif Englund, even if cats were licensed, they would screech anyway!

THREE STUDENTS IN EUROPE

Three Carmel High students won the American Field Service Scholarships to Europe. Suzanne Pilot will be in Turkey, Michael Gahagan will live in Spain, and Bob Mormick will live in France. Each student left from Montreal and on Monday they arrived in Rotterdam. They will take trains and planes to their respective foster families and should arrive at their new homes by this date.

Mrs. Pilot already received a letter from the Turkish family who is to welcome Suzanne. They are in Istanbul awaiting her plane which will arrive today.

Rob, who is the son of Col. and Mrs. A.F. McCormick, will reunite with his family in San Antonio, Texas. His older brother, Michael, will spend the summer in Guatemala. Bob will stay with two families in Brittany.

LITTLEFIELDS TO SEE WHAT THEY MISSED

Unlike most folks who always plan to see what they missed "next time" and never do, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Littlefield of Carmel are returning to Europe soon with a motor home, to see what they missed last year.

The Littlefield children are grown and gone, so the couple decided that they "are now young enough and in good health, and don't want to put it off til they're old."

They have no pre-scheduled itinerary, plan to be gone for a year, and have rented their home.

THE TOWN CRIER

A lifetime dream to operate a flower shop has come true for Phyllis Burns of Hitchcock Canyon, the new proprietress of the Flower Bucket in Carmel Valley Village. Roses and gladioli are her personal favorites, but she plans to keep a full array of fresh flowers available for Valley residents. Her shop will be open every day but Sunday, and she has plans to expand her offerings to include choice pastries and baked goods. If all goes well, by mid-August customers should be able to pick up a festive dessert and flowers for the dinner table at the same time.

Phyllis and her husband, Jim, are the parents of four children ranging in age from 9½ to 4 years old.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF INTENT TO COLLECT FLAT RATE ASSESSMENTS FOR SEWER SERVICE

The Board of Directors of Carmel Sanitary District of Monterey County, California, will conduct a public hearing on Thursday, July 15, 1982, at 1:30 p.m. in the Council Chamber, City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, to consider a report on file in the office of the District Secretary that proposes to establish a schedule of rates for sewer service charges that if adopted will be collected on behalf of the District by the County Tax Collector on the property tax roll, pursuant to the California Health and Safety Code, Section 5473.1, rather than by direct billing.

The proposed charges to be assessed by parcel for the year 1982-83 are:

CATEGORY	ANNUAL RATE
Residential	$72/Dwelling
Motel, Hotel	$36/Room
Restaurants	*$7.20/seat-meal
Bar Area	$144/Location
Retail Stores	$72/Location
Laundromats	$60/Machine
Offices	$72/License
Cleaner (clothes)	$384/Location
Service Stations	$108/Location
Medical/Dental Offices	$144/Location
Students	$3.60/Student
Convalescent Hospital	$30/Bed
Bakeries	$228/Location
Supermarkets	$900/Location
Animal Hospitals	$156/Location
Special Users	$/Flow Characteristics

Each user entity shall be assessed a minimum charge of $72.00 per annum.

*Customer seats x meal periods (Breakfast-Lunch-Dinner)

The Carmel Sanitary District collects, treats and disposes of wastewater (sewage) from more than 6,000 residential and commercial connections in Carmel, its environs and Carmel Valley.

The fixed rate user fee for sewer srvice includes funds for current maintenance and operation costs, and current and planned treatment plant and trunk sewer construction required by State and Federal Regulations to meet environmental standards.

Take a close look!

If you haven't seen Village Green lately, chances are you're in for a pleasant surprise or two.

We've just completed making an already beautiful and intimate community of 22 single-family attached homes even more so . . . in keeping with the surrounding Carmel Valley community. We've added more mature landscaping to accent the rustic setting and there's now a fully-decorated model of our Plan B floorplan as well as a vignette of Plan A.

Exteriors crafted with cedar siding and shake roofs blend beautifully with landscaped front yards and individually fenced rear yards to give Village Green a special natural charm.

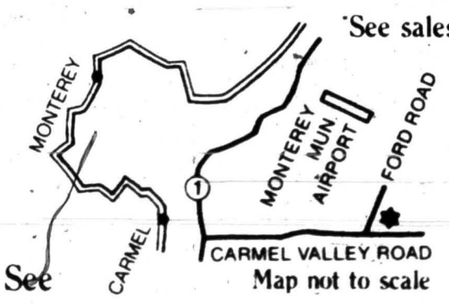

Best of all, we've added value to Village Green by drastically reducing prices to those who buy a new Village Green home today.

See for yourself Carmel Valley's best new-home value. See Village Green today.

Carmel Landmark

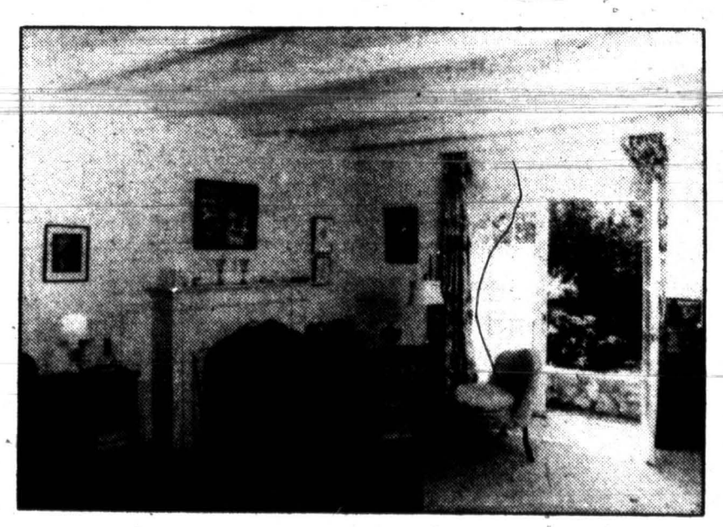

Ideally situated close to the Village and steps away from Carmel Beach, the Dutton estate is a unique offering. Wonderfully spacious and well-built, the house is on 3½ lots, and retains the craftsmanship of a half century ago. Warmth and charm are everywhere — in the very large living and dining rooms (each with fireplace), four bedrooms (three with fireplaces) which can be suites, hardwood floors, open beam ceilings.

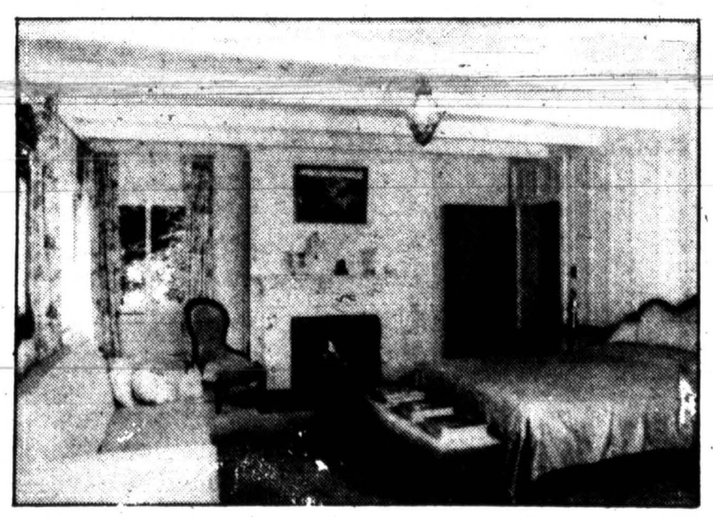

With approximately 2,980 sq. ft. and ocean views from several rooms. Large, private, sunny patios with mature landscaping enhance the livability of a place of immense character in a prestigious area. Not often does a property of this stature come on the market in Carmel. Estate sale/attractive financing.

HEARTS GATE

WHEN I FIRST SAW YOU nestled in Oaks and Orchids and Pines, I knew you were mine. But I thought you too small. You looked so Tiny from the Outside. Then I opened your Charming Gate, crossed your Quaint Brick Courtyard, borders Teeming, with Flowers, and entered your door. Much to my Surprise, I Realized you were just being Modest. You, having a Great Heart, were the Magic of Carmel, happening Just One More Time.

YOU HAD IT ALL. 4 Spacious Bedrooms, 3 Bathrooms, 2,800 square feet of House, Room Galore, a peek of the Ocean, a Deck, the Sound of the Surf. 2 Large Livingrooms each with Fireplaces. Kitchen and Master bathroom with Portugese Tiles, Irreplaceable now, and a Large Welcoming Hall.

THERE WERE MANY Spaces for Children, Grandchildren, Family, Parties and Friends. Sweet Secret Places for Writing and Painting and Dreaming. On a Lot and a Half between 7th and 8th on Camino Real in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Lovely walks to the Beach, or Uptown. The walking is Easy going Up or Down.

I NAMED YOU Hearts Gate because I loved you and you loved me. So many Good Memories have been Born in You. For All you have Given me, it is only Fair that I find your New Family Myself, to make Sure they will Love you, too.

HEARTS GATE is offered to qualified buyers by its owners and by appointment only.

IF YOU HAVE never known Love or Hope or Joy or the Magic of Carmel, don't bother to call. On the Other Hand, Hearts Gate may Show you All of those Enchanting things you Never had a Chance to See or Feel before. If you Think Hearts Gate Wants to Belong to You, make an appointment and Enter the door.

YES, THERE IS A Fairy Cottage in the back Overgrown now. And on Moonlit nights I've seen Elves and a Unicorn too. All this was ours, but it Could Belong to You. Why? Because we're moving on now to Xanadu.

LOTS 7, 9 & 11, BLOCK CC

WHAT WE ARE describing is a charming Carmel cottage that is for sale at a price that is equal to the value of the land alone! But don't be misled, this is no tearer-downer. It's not even a fixer-upper. It's an enchanting solid home with four bedrooms, two and one half baths, a living room with cathedral ceiling and Carmel stone fireplace, functional kitchen, carport and garage. It is surrounded by lovely azaleas, rhododendrons, and sturdy old oak trees. And it's located in the coveted southwest sector of Carmel that so many of our buyers want. All this for just $600,000.

TALK ABOUT TERMS!!

WITH 25% DOWN, seller will carry at 12% for five years, OR wil a $20,000 non-refundable deposit and $1400 monthly rent, seller will give you a lease-option AND the $20,000 deposit will be applied against the selling price at the time you exercise your option.

TALK ABOUT LOCATION! In the middle of the southwest quadrant of Carmel, the highly prized area that so many buyers tell us they prefer. It's a five minute walk to the beach, (three minutes going down) a ten minute walk to the village (either way) and just a five minute drive to the Lodge at Pebble Beach.

TALK ABOUT HOUSE!! This is a nicely remodeled two-story home with three bedrooms, two and one-half baths, comfortable living room with fireplace, wonderful country kitchen and much light and sun. And the price is reduced to a realistic $365,000.

"LOTS" FOR YOUR MONEY

AND THIS ONE has what everyone's looking for ... an ocean view across the fourth green of the MPCC Shore Course, one of the last white water view lots, $295,000 ... Carmel Woods 10,000 square feet homesite with distant view of Point Lobos $160,000 ...Choice homesite on Jacks Peak with five acres of of lovely Monterey Bay views $269,500.

LEASE OPTION???

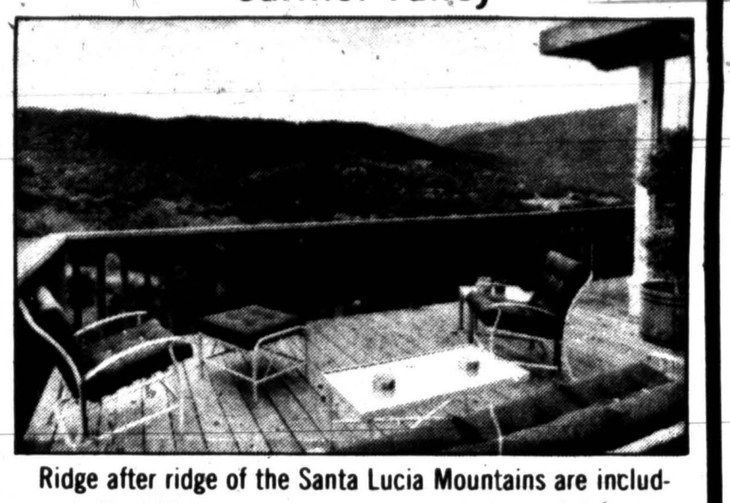

MAYBE ... On a quiet cul-de-sac just two blocks from Magnin's and the heart of the village, is a really cute hideaway. The house has a cozy fireplace, three bedrooms, two baths, a detached garage and even a hot tub. Adjacent green belt gives an added dimension to an already oversized (and nicely wooded) lot. Nothing south of Ocean Avenue is asking as little as $199,500, is it?

Carmel Valley

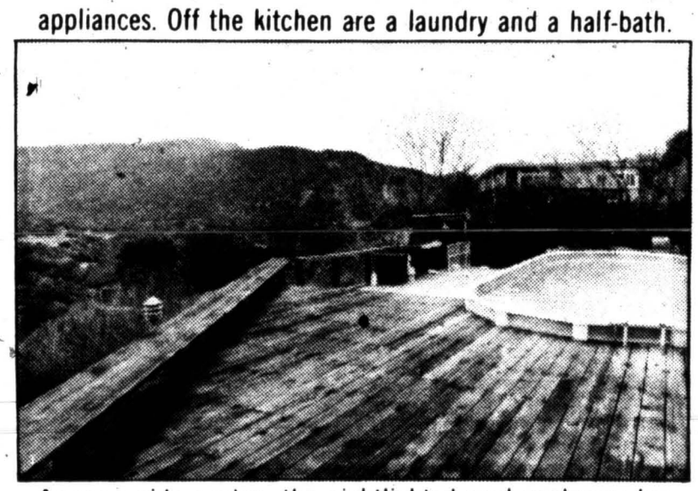

Ridge after ridge of the Santa Lucia Mountains are included in the 180-degree view captured by window walls opening to decks and patios wrapping round a redwood, contemporary home, and, increasing enjoyment of a 2.5-acre, sunny site, are a swimming pool and hot tub, both with their own decks and solar heat. A guest suite downstairs with separate entrance is another attraction of this Los Tulares property.

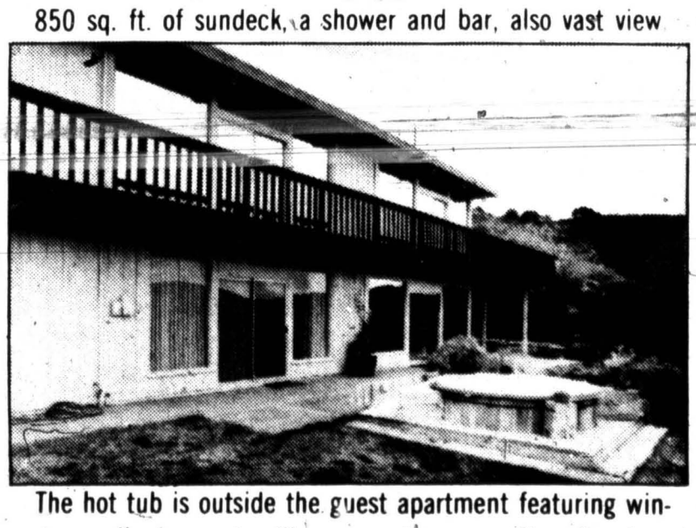

Featuring a Carmel stone fireplace, the living/dining area has paneled walls and beamed ceilings of redwood tinted to harmonize with beige carpeting. Similar interior treatment is in the master bedroom and bath, also two more bedrooms. The second bathroom and an entrance hall have tile floors.

Skylights and clerestory windows brighten the kitchen with passthrough to the living/dining area, matching tile floor and countertops, a wealth of cabinets, topline electrical appliances. Off the kitchen are a laundry and a half-bath.

Across a side garden, the nightlighted pool enclosure has 850 sq. ft. of sundeck, a shower and bar, also vast view

The hot tub is outside the guest apartment featuring window walls, beamed ceilings, paneling, carpeting, fireplace in the living room, a compact kitchen, a bedroom and bath. A double garage with a dark room, forced air gas heat with separate controls for upstairs and downstairs increase the livableness of this pleasingly private property. $285,000.
